FINNS FIRE ON RUSSIAN PLANES

Faces 2 Charges After 3-Hour Chase

LOUDONVILLE MAN CAPTURED BY PATROLMEN

Three Ashland County Officers Hurt; Suspect, 23, Held for Grand Jury.

TRIES TO END LIFE IN JAIL

Marshal's Attempt to Arrest Man at Plant Starts Wild Afternoon.

Captured yesterday after a three-hour chase which resulted in injury to three Ashland county officers, George H. Lacknett, 23, Loudonville, was held in the Ashland county jail today pending grand jury action on a charge of assaulting an officer and resisting arrest.

Arraigned before Mayor E. L. Smith of Loudonville yesterday afternoon, following his arrest, Lacknett pleaded innocent and was bound over to the jury under $1,000 bond.

He is accused of driving away from Marshal A. B. Conrad of Loudonville as the officer attempted to place him under arrest. Conrad sustained head and arm injuries when thrown from the moving vehicle.

Lacknett was taken into custody by state highway patrolmen from the Mansfield sub-station after he eluded Ashland county authorities in a three-hour chase through the southern part of Ashland county. Corp. C. L. Strayer and Patrolman J. A. Gosling arrested him on route 97, east of Butler.

Found Sitting in Car.

The officers said they found him sitting in his automobile parked along the highway writing a letter to relatives. A loaded 22 caliber revolver lay on the top of the seat.

The patrolmen declined to disclose the contents of the letter but admitted that Lacknett had tried to take his life while lodged in the Loudonville jail

When police prevented the funeral march, the youths, singing Slavic songs tried to enter Wenceslas square and Karl's square from side streets.

SPECULATE ON PLANS OF F.D.R.

High Politicos Say President Won't Fight for Delegates at Preferential Primaries.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Persons high in Democratic party councils predicted today that President Roosevelt would make no fight for Democratic convention delegates in preferential primaries next spring.

They expressed the opinion that, even if Mr. Roosevelt intended to run for a third term, he would not authorize use of his name on the primary ballots in states requiring candidates' consent.

Instead, they predicted, he would rely on uninstructed delegates and on his chances of picking delegations from states pledged to other candidates after they had recorded their primary-directed preferences in initial voting at the convention.

Mr. Roosevelt once more declined to shed any light, yesterday on his third term intentions. At the White House press conference, a reporter mentioned the week-end announcement that Vice President Garner's name would go before the Democratic convention.

"Does that change your plans in any way, Mr. President?" he asked.

Baby Killer Ruled Sane, Freed From State Asylum

Mrs. Fink, Slayer of 11-Week-Old Son, Gets Her Final Release From Lima; After Sanity Hearing Today.

(By United Press)

LIMA—Velma Baker Fink, 22-year-old divorcee of Clyde, O., who was acquitted eight weeks ago of a first degree murder charge in connection with the death of her infant son, was released from the Lima State Hospital for Criminal Insane today.

In the courtroom of Judge Neal Lora, the attractive Mrs. Fink was adjudged sane on the testimony of two staff physicians of the state hospital and was paroled to the custody of her family physician for one year.

Dr. H. M. Turk, superintendent of the hospital, and Dr. E. H Crawfis testified today at the 30-minute hearing that at no time since she entered the institution on Sept. 25 had Mrs. Fink shown any sign of mental illness.

A jury of eight women and four men on Sept. 22 acquitted Mrs. Fink of the murder charge after a trial in Sandusky county common pleas court at Fremont.

She had confessed throwing her 11-week-old son, Haldon Fink, into Green creek near Clyde the night of last June 13 but pleaded innocent by reason of temporary insanity following childbirth. She was divorced a few days before her son's death.

She will be technically in the custody of Dr. E. A. Baker of Clyde, during the next 12 months.

Mrs. Fink, for her court appearance today, was dressed in a black tailored suit with a white

BOMBER DOWN

U. S. Army's Good-Will Plane Damaged in Paraguay.

MIAMI, Fla. —(U.P.)— One of the U. S. army's good-will bombers bogged down and damaged a propeller in an attempted take-off at Asuncion, Paraguay, today and was left behind when the other six ships departed for Rio De Janeiro, Pan American Airways reported.

The six planes took off at 5:30 a. m. (EST) and were due in Rio later today.

The radio message received by Pan American said the mishap occurred to the "flying fortress" as it taxied for the take-off. It was believed rainy weather, which delayed the scheduled take-off for Rio yesterday had softened the field and caused the plane to nose over slightly.

MAYOR SLAIN, AID SHOT IN POLICE 'FEUD'

Long Beach, N. Y., Executive Killed in Front of Home, Bodyguard Wounded.

PATROLMAN GIVES UP

Motorcycle Officer Surrenders for Questioning; Political Fight Seen to Blame.

(By United Press)

LONG BEACH, N. Y.—A small town mayor was shot and fatally wounded as he stood on the steps of his home today and his bodyguard was critically wounded in what authorities believed was the aftermath of a police department political fight.

Mayor Louis N. Edwards died at Long Beach hospital at 10:40 a. m., half an hour after he was wounded in the right side. As attaches of Long Beach hospital worked to save the life of Detective James Walsh, the mayor's bodyguard, Motorcycle Policeman Alvin Dooley gave himself up for questioning.

Walsh was taken to the operating room upon arrival at the hospital. He was wounded in the left kidney, and hospital physicians announced after examination that his condition was "very, very critical."

Police said that Dooley was being questioned for what information he had of the shooting. They indicated that another officer was involved.

Dooley, it was revealed, was defeated recently for the presidency of the Long Beach Patrolmen's Benevolent Association by Walsh, who had the backing of the mayor.

Five Shots Fired.

Five shots were fired as the mayor and Walsh started to leave the former's home for city hall. Dooley was assigned to the police booth adjacent to Edward's home.

As president of the P. B. A. for four years, Dooley had been a minor power in Long Beach politics. Reports were circulated before the recent election that policemen who voted against Walsh might find themselves with distasteful assignments. Despite his defeat Dooley retained his post outside the mayor's home.

The mayor is survived by his wife, a son and four daughters.

SCHOOLS CLOSE AS LEVY FAILS

Crippled Toledo Finances to Give Pupils 6-Weeks Vacation.

TOLEDO — (AP) — Toledo, already plagued by a shortage of relief funds, today found its schools about to close for the rest of the year due to crippled finances.

The board of education voted to halt classes Nov. 23 in the face of a $600,000 deficit brought on by the defeat of a four-mill levy at the recent election.

Beyond announcing a six-week vacation for students, the board did not stipulate the date the schools would reopen.

Cleveland Renews Plea For Bricker To Call Assembly

CLEVELAND — (INS) — With State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood attending, city and county officials, city council welfare committee members, and civic leaders today voted to send a committee to Gov. John W. Bricker to urge immediate calling of a special session of the legislature to consider emergency relief measures.

Sherwood telephoned the governor at the close of the meeting to report his findings and the "concensus of opinion" of the meeting. Mayor Harold H. Burton said that he was awaiting a call from the governor informing him of his decision on calling the assembly.

Sherwood told the meeting that the "entire problem . . . is what the general assembly would do if it were called."

He pointed out that it was altogether possible that the legislature might refuse to provide necessary funds for relief in Cleveland and other cities where funds are exhausted if called at the present time.

Land Batteries Machine-Gun Soviet Aircraft

Tension Grows as Russia Puts on Pressure to Force Demands After Collapse of Negotiations; Finns Prepared, Finnish Envoy Says.

(By International News Service)

HELSINGFORS — Drawing repeated machine gun fire, Soviet aircraft flew continuously over Finnish Karelia today as Finland prepared to resist Soviet pressure aimed at forcing compliance with the rejected Russian demands.

The Russian aerial demonstrations were carried out as the Moscow negotiators, Dr. Juho Paasikivi and Finance Minister V. A. Tanner, returned to Helsingfors from the Soviet capital.

With all signs pointing to a long "war of nerves" between tiny Finland and huge Russia, authorities made it clear that Finland is ready to maintain her defense measure and other precautions for months rather than give in to Soviet demands for naval and air bases on the Finnish coast.

Tanner, however, in an interview given at the Soviet-Finnish border before reaching Helsingfors, indicated that the Soviet farewell to the Finnish negotiators was friendly despite the breakdown in the talks.

"When we were leaving Moscow," he declared, "Soviet Director Josef Stalin with a friendly smile wished Finland all happiness. Premier V. M. Molotov said 'au revoir'."

But Risto Ryti, chief of the Bank of Finland, indicated that the nation is prepared to hold out for a long time against Russian pressure.

"The Russians," he declared, "are too optimistic if they think Finland cannot maintain its present defense economy for more than four to seven months.

Denies Red Statements.

"According to the Moscow newspaper Pravda, our defense costs are between 30,000,000 and 60,000,000 marks a day. This is not true. Even 30,000,000 marks is many times too high a sum.

"The Russian press says there has been a run on Finnish banks. That is not true. The Finnish state has not borrowed even one mark from the Bank of Finland.

"Note circulation some time ago was higher because of the evacuation of 100,000 persons from danger areas and the need of some money reserves, but this is all normal now.

"Even after the new defense loan is fully signed, Finland will have more than 400,000,000 Swedish crowns (about $92,000,000) in liabilities, which is very little in comparison to other states.

"Despite the war, Finnish exports are being maintained at 90 per cent of normal."

ANSWER: Nazi Reply to Dutch, Belgian Peace Move Due Today

(By United Press)

THE HAGUE, Netherlands—Germany's reply to the Belgian-Netherlands peace mediation offer was due here and at Brussels today and while it was reported to be a polite rejection, there was still hope here that it could be revived, with moral help from other neutrals, especially the Americas.

Pan-American nations were considered to be in the best position to guide the warring nations slowly toward some understanding, by using economic as well as moral force, and both Holland and Belgium already were looking for means to renew their offer on a larger scale at the first opportunity.

The United States was believed following the movement closely. Joseph E. Davies, American ambassador to Belgium, conferred with King Leopold yesterday, it was learned, and George A. Gordon, United States minister to the Netherlands, had been received by Queen Wilhelmina Sunday.

The German reply to the offer by Wilhelmina and Leopold of their good offices in mediation was revealed privately to the Dutch and Belgian ministers at the foreign office in Berlin yesterday.

SAMPLE: Nazis Tell British Shetland Raids Just the Start

(By United Press)

BERLIN—The official German news agency DNB said today that Monday's raid on the Shetland Islands by German bombing planes and the previous air attacks on Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth were "only a beginning" of the war in the air against Britain.

The warning of more bombing attacks on British territory followed announcement by the German high command that one German submarine during the "past few days" has sunk 26,000 tons of shipping and captured one prize ship.

The communique gave no details.

Two other casualties announced in the communique had been announced by the British admiralty yesterday—loss of a British destroyer which struck a German mine and sinking of the British freighter Matra, 8,600 tons, after an explosion.

"Except for minor local artillery activity there were no particular developments on the western front," the communique said.

"The British admiralty announced loss of one destroyer, which struck a German mine. The British freighter Matra, 8,600 tons, was destroyed by an explosion. One of our U-boats during the past few days sunk 26,000 tons of shipping and captured one prize ship."

This map shows the Shetland islands, scene of a bombing attack of four German planes.

Three More Schoolgirls Ward Off Child Molester's Advances

City police and sheriff's deputies today were investigating new attempts of an elderly man to entice small girls into his car. They hope to apprehend the driver and have several children, who have been molested in the past six months, identify him.

The latest report was made last night after the man had made two attempts to lure small girls into his car near Fourth avenue and Orange streets. He drove to the curb beside two girls, one 8 and one 12 years old, opened the car door and asked them to get in and "take a ride."

The girls refused and ran. Several minutes later the same car stopped beside a 13 year old girl who had witnessed the first attempt. In both cases the children took the license number of the car.

Police went to the man's home last night but failed to find him. Detective Lee Remy and Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, who have been working on a number of similar cases, were trying to locate the man this afternoon.

This was the ninth case reported in six months, according to police, in Mansfield and two in Crestline. Descriptions in all cases pointed to the same man, police said. However, the man in the earlier cases was said to have driven an old coupe, the one last night was driving a sedan.

County Again 'Deports' Wife, Baby of Jailed Relief Client

County authorities today sent back to Kentucky the wife and baby of a relief client who is serving a 30-day jail sentence for driving while intoxicated.

Mrs. Elliott Adams and her child, less than a year old, were placed aboard a bus and headed for Hazard, Ky., for the second time in less than a year.

Last winter Adams, his wife and their child hitch-hiked to Mansfield and lived for several months in a rented truck. They were without heat or food when the child became ill with the croup. Mansfield people provided a stove and groceries since the family was not eligible for relief.

Early this year the Mansfield Community Fund raised money to send the family back to Kentucky at Adams' request, according to Sidney L. Palmer, secretary of the Fund. Adams promised to stay in Kentucky where he was eligible for relief. However the family returned to Mansfield several months later.

Adams was arrested early in November for driving while intoxicated. On Nov. 4 he was sentenced to 30 days in county jail, given costs to pay and his driving license suspended for a year.

Authorities here said they would send Adams back to Kentucky after he is released on Dec. 11.

Hunt Bodies of Hundreds Killed By Oil Town Fire

DIVERS SEARCH LAKE FOR DEAD IN VENEZUELA

3,000 Inhabitants of 'Stilt City' Trapped as Flames Cut Off Escape.

(By United Press)

MARACAIBO, Venezuela—Divers searched in the oily waters of Lake Maracaibo today for the bodies of the men, women and children who perished when fire swept the "stilt city" of Langunillas, an oil town 40 miles southwest of here.

Estimates of the dead ranged from 500 to 1,000 and damage was set at $1,240,000.

The divers were reported to have recovered 28 bodies in the first search among the charred piles which marked the site of the over-water section of the town which sprang up 25 years ago when foreign companies, principally American, began to take oil from the surrounding field.

President Rushes Aid.

Rescue workers, under the personal direction of President Manuel Maldonado of the state of Zulia, took physicians, medical supplies, food and coffins to the stricken community by ferryboat and launches.

The fire started Monday night when a gasoline lamp exploded in a saloon. It spread quickly, burning a short bridge which connected the over-water section of the town with the part of the community on the shore, cutting off the escape of 3,000 inhabitants.

The "stilt city" of 300 huts, packed into an area little larger than a city block, was built on piles connecting the oil wells in the lake with the shore. Its wooden "streets" and the piles were soaked with oil, which floats in a thick film on the surface of the water.

Flames rose quickly from the oil-covered lake, turning it into an inferno, and wiped out the little village quickly. Two thousand inhapitants escaped, but the remaining 1,000 were dead or missing today.

Survivors were receiving treatment at nearby communities. Approximately 100 children orphaned by the fire were cared for by authorities.

President Eleazar Lopez Contreras issued a decree at Caracas ordering three days of national mourning and the government appropriated $263,500 for relief. All survivors were ordered evacuated immediately by state authorities.

Try Frozen Sleep Again as Means of Checking Cancer

CINCINNATI—(AP)— Physicians at Jewish hospital slowly brought a 46-year-old woman out of an 108-hour frozen sleep today and sought to determine more definitely the effects of lowered body temperature in checking cancer.

The awakening process was started late yesterday but attendants took care to keep the "warming up" at a slow pace to prevent any possible adverse reaction.

For the 108 hours, her second frozen sleep in a week, her body was kept at a temperature of 84 degrees, 14.6 degrees below normal, by means of ice packs.

She was fed by passing a glucose solution through tubes in her nose.

Dr. Walter List, hospital superintendent, said the possibility of a third treatment would depend on findings in an examination as soon as the woman had "readjusted herself to her normal surroundings."

Mansfield's Thanksgiving day dinners will not be disturbed a week from tomorrow by the late return of football-goers. The change—and Beer believes all housewives will be for it 100 per cent—was requested by Cuyahoga Falls officials.

One Mansfield man learned recently that it never pays to quarrel with your wife—but the "lesson" was learned at a pretty high cost. The couple always go to picture shows together, and they've been attending every bank night. Last Friday she planned as usual to go to one of the shows that have bank night, but he was tired, didn't feel like going to a movie and besides he'd never be lucky enough to win anything anyway. No amount of coaxing could change his mind, so in something of a huff, she went without him, for the first time. And when his name was called as a winner of the $450 and he wasn't there to claim it, she pretty nearly passed out—but was sustained by the thought that she could say "I told you so!"

Chrysler Back-to-Work Move Fails to Re-open Plants.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Chrysler corporation plants in Detroit opened their doors today for a back-to-work movement sponsored by the United Automobile Workers affiliated with the AFL, but not enough employes entered to resume production, which has been paralyzed since early in October.

Some employes, arriving at plant gates in the early morning darkness, filtered into the plants in groups of twos and threes. They were checked in by company police.

At the Dodge main plant, where the production dispute between the company and the UAW affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations began last Oct. 6, a picket line of approximately 700 men was on duty.

RACING WIRE TO CLOSE FOREVER

Annenberg Still Faces Tax Evasion Charges With 19 Others.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—M. L. Annenberg and his associates began liquidating their vast race news empire today with the intention of quitting business forever.

The far-flung organization known as the Nationwide News Service, Inc., took steps to end dissemination of horse race information by tomorrow noon.

Recently a target of federal and state prosecutors, the wire network for years has carried race entries, odds, results, payoff prices and other information from tracks to betting parlors.

Meanwhile, Annenberg and 19 others were summoned to federal court today for arraignment on indictments alleging violation of the income tax and other laws.

U. S. District Attorney William J. Campbell said dissolution of the wire network had no bearing on the criminal cases; that "no agreement of any sort" had been discussed or contemplated. The income tax charges against Annenberg alleged he owed the government approximately $5,500,000 in back income taxes and penalties.

The liquidation of Nationwide News Service will affect every state in the nation as well as Canada and Cuba, and apparently will deprive bookmakers of their only nationwide wire network.

KIRK RIDGE DELIGHTS MUSIC LOVERS WITH VARIED CONCERT

Mansfield music lovers turned out last night to give an enthusiastic reception to Kirk Ridge, concert pianist and professor of piano at Syracuse university, when he appeared in a recital at Senior High school.

Mansfield's "adopted son" appeared here under the auspices of the Music Study club for the benefit of the club's scholarship fund. More than 800 tickets were sold, and the audience gave Ridge the enthusiastic appreciation reserved for special occasions.

Ridge played an unusually long concert, but was called upon for four encores. His program was arranged to show his ability both as a music technician and as an interpreter of the moods of the classical composers.

Beethoven's Sonata, opus 57 in F minor, undoubtedly was the high point of his program, but for the audience the Chopin group held the greater appeal.

There were four of the Chopin preludes, an etude and the waltz in C sharp minor. A dramatic contrast was provided in the interpretation of the slow, solemn funeral march, followed by the stirring and tragic Polonaise which seemed to take on a new solemnity last night as listeners remembered Poland's fate.

Ridge's last group was made up of lovely and melodious numbers with wide popular appeal, such as one of Friedman's Viennese waltz, an etude in C sharp minor by Scriabine; the sixth of Liszt's Hungarian rhapsodies, and Ridge's own minuet.

All four encores were favorites with music lovers: Schumann's sprightly "Why?," another of the Viennese waltzes by Friedman; "Two Larks" by Leschetizky; and Brahm's Intermezzo which takes its theme from an old Scotch melody.

After the concert Ridge was besieged by autograph collectors, and later in the evening was guest of honor at an informal reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Black, Millsborough road.

He returned to Syracuse late last night after spending the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ridge of Lucas.

Jersey, Pennsylvania, Parts of Delaware, Maryland Shaken by Earthquake.

(By International News Service)

Except for the jangled nerves of hundreds of alarmed residents of southern New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania and scattered sections of Delaware and Maryland, no damage of any consequence was reported today as a result of the 10-second earthquake which shook the region at 9:54 last night.

Frightened by the swaying of their houses, hundreds of persons swamped police stations throughout the affected region with telephone calls seeking assurance of their safety. Within 30 minutes, Philadelphia city hall was besieged by an estimated 8,000 telephone queries.

Both Franklin Institute at Philadelphia and Fordham university at New York fixed the time of the quake at 9.54 and its duration at 10 seconds.

The institute reported the center appeared to be about 30 or 40 miles north of Philadelphia.

Father Joseph Lynch, in charge of the Fordham seismograph, reported the center at about 100 to 105 miles south of New York City.

"Intensity was extremely mild," Father Lynch said. "The amplification was a little more than we would get from a quarry blast at that distance."

Furniture Overturned.

There were many stories of persons being almost shaken out of their beds, pictures and light fixtures swaying, and from Baltimore of furniture being overturned.

The chief alarm was displayed in several communities in southern New Jersey where the quake seemed to center. Frightened members quickly emptied two lodge halls in Vineland, N. J., it was reported, and several persons there fled their homes, believing their furnaces had exploded.

LOSE IN COURT

Brunswick Officials' Demurrer Overruled by Judge.

ASHLAND—Judge H. E. Culbertson today overruled a demurrer filed by Mark L. Lutz and Walter R. Petchler, Brunswick village officials, in the criminal libel indictment against them.

Ten days ago the two men filed a motion to have the case dismissed on the grounds the indictment was vague and insufficient. The motion was overruled.

Their arraignment was to have taken place today. Instead they filed the demurrer which the court overruled. They were given 10 days in which to plead.

The indictment against them grew out of a grand jury investigation of perjury in connection with affidavits filed against Robert S. Greenlun, state highway employe, who was suspended as a result.

FAIR ENOUGH!

The Great I Am Gets New Rival In Man Who Talks With God, Has New Faith

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—There appeared in Los Angeles on election day, when the queeries of the town were in their most susceptible mood, a page advertisement of 1,200 words by Dr. Frank B. Robinson of Moscow, Ida., who claimed he has talked with God and, for a price, is willing to reveal the secret of a new religion which he calls psychiana.

Some papers in some cities might reject such copy, but in Los Angeles the notice of a new revelation is no less ethical than a routine bargain in boss-fix powders, angel down or Yogi's bath water. The faithful hunger and clamor for ham and eggs but never stint their holy men.

In Cleveland, where I saw him lately, the great I Am, also of Los Angeles, had four new, expensive cars for himself and staff, time on the air and a suite at the best hotel in town. The great I Am was just out calling on the trade, for Los Angeles is his seat and the California mountains are the scene of his occasional conferences with the sacred three times three, the great ascended spirits and a militant, gaseous God-force identified as K-17.

As a recall his route the great I Am known in private life as G. W. Ballard, would still be on the road, so I didn't bother to call but did mention him to Mr. Buron Fitts, the district attorney, and was surprised to learn that this well-informed local official, whose detective bureau combines the best elements of the gestapo and the F. B. I., never had heard of his eminent fellow-citizen.

* * *

"The great I Am?" Mr. Fitts said. "Is he new in the racket? Make a note of him, Klein. He may be someone we would like to know."

"But surely you know the Great I am!" I wheedled. "He has access to a lake of gold on Mt. Shasta, and this friend of his, the sacred three times three, recently destroyed a number of hostile submarines, hither bound, with a sword of purple flame."

"I never heard of the guy," Mr. Fitts said. "He is not a big shot."

"He can't be a big shot," Mr. Klein nodded.

Mr. Fitts and Mr. Klein are blase about God men. Occasionally they have to bust up a flock for the sake of the lambs, which is a fine commentary on religious freedom, but that's the way it goes, nevertheless.

I attempted no comparison between the great I Am faith and psychiana beyond an observation that the Prophet Ballard never prays to his gods but orders them about like flunkeys, whereas Dr. Robinson of Moscow, Ida., follows convention and gets excellent results, too.

Master of the I Am religion can make themselves invisible, a knack to tempt burglars and 'varsity backs, and there is said to be no limit to the material gifts which they command, including money. However, Mr. Ballard was not invisible in Cleveland, unless it be that I have second sight, for I vow I saw the prophet plainly. Dr. Robinson gets his without recourse to sorcery and is proud, not to say a shade vulgar, on the subject of his cash receipts.

* * *

A box car stray his writing says he was, a beggar, and, if I may suggest a word, a bum, who worked only when forced to and that seldom, until one day he struck up a conversation with God. Today he owns the largest office building in Moscow, Ida., has a beautiful home with a magnificent pipe organ and drives a big limousine, while his wife and son have their own cars. His little girl isn't old enough to drive her own, but just you wait.

Dr. Robinson doesn't mention his degree but speaks of a little drug store which he had to abandon owing to the press of religious business, and country druggists commonly are called "Doc." For all his wealth he doesn't want money from his converts beyond enough to pay expenses—and grow.

For growth he requires an unspecified proportion of the grow, but he extends a money-back offer to those who try psychiana and don't get rich like him, with cars for all hands 'round, a pipe organ and all like that.

This seems a very attractive offer, and here he is working the Prophet Ballard's beat by mail while the great I Am drags around the east where the skeptics roost high.

The prophet better git for home. Somebody is messin' around his chicken coop.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Sonja Henie's really arrived now—there's a Henie doll coming on the market. . . . Smart casting for Sonja's new picture, "Everything Happens at Night," when they put the up-and-coming Cummings in the romantic lead—which guarantees some light humor and some heavy falls—when Bob gets on the ice. . . . Maurice Maeterlinck, like Shakespeare, gets a belated nod from Hollywood. . . . Unlike Shakespeare, Maeterlinck came in person once, summoned by Samuel Goldwyn when the producer was enthralled by his "eminent authors" (and cheaper stars) idea. . . . Maeterlinck turned in his script but he didn't stay on after Goldwyn read it. . . . The hero was a bee—at least, that's the legend.

Maeterlinck's present nod takes shape in an expensive Shirley Temple version of "The Blue Bird," first Temple film, incidentally, in which Shirley has a brother. . . . He's Johnny Russell. . . . First picture, too, in which Shirley plays a meanie—although she reforms in the end. . . . Sets for "The Blue Bird" are by Richard Day and Wiard Ihnen, and are a new high in beauty and simplicity of design. . . .

* * *

Speaking of sets—Willy Pogany, the Hungarian-born artist who used to art-direct for Warner Bros., has given up portraits of movie stars (he court-tiffed with Connie Bennett, remember?) and has gone into the cartoon field. . . . His first film introduces a charming character in "Peterkin," a mischievous faun whose mouth curls up exactly as Willy Pogany's does. . . . Mrs. Pogany wrote "Peterkin" and he'll be a series. . . . Pogany stressed the "sets" for his cartoon and achieved some striking effects. . . . The C. Bennett portrait, which C. Bennett told the court was not satisfactory, still hangs in Willy Pogany's home.

Jeanette MacDonald, before she concert-tours again this February, is making a "MacDonald concert album" of records of her first tour offerings last spring.

Look for this fashion boner in "Little Old New York": Harry Cording, the mustached character of many movies, plays a part—but wouldn't sacrifice his mustache to conform to the period's style in men's facial spinach. . . . Nothing much in this new script, incidentally, except the title and the setting, to remind of Marion Davies' silent version. . . . Joel McCrea (with Nancy Kelly in "He Married His Wife") is going to work next for Gregory LaCava, with Ginger Rogers, in "The Primrose Path." . . . With "Private Worlds" LaCava pulled McCrea out of a bad slump, started him off to higher marks—and the momentum of a LaCava boost hasn't dropped any—because Joel is booked for roles well into next year. . . .

The usual feud reports on the "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep" set, where Gable is supposed to have spouted off about not wanting to work with Crawford. . . . There may have been sillier reports but I never heard 'em. . . . Some day two stars are going to be cast together and they'll work through the picture and there won't be a single feud report—but it can't happen here. . . .

Jane Darwell, who was doing some pretty small bits at 20th toward the end of her contract there, got the Ma Joad role in "Grapes of Wrath"—by sitting down and writing Zanuck a note requesting a test. . . . Said she craved the role while reading the book. . . .

YES, DOC, I'D LIKE VERY MUCH TO HAVE YOUR OPINION ON WHAT THAT SUBSTANCE IS.
HM! WELL OFF HAND, I'D SAY IT WAS A TENDON FROM SOME SMALL ANIMAL.
POSSIBLY FROM THE LEG OF A DOG OR A LAMB OR EVEN A PIG.
IT WOULDN'T BE A CELLULOSE OR RUBBER COMPOSITION WOULD IT?
DEFINITELY NOT! WHEN HELD IN A FLAME IT GIVES OFF THAT UNMISTAKABLE SIMPLE ODOR OF BURNING MEAT OR ANIMAL FAT.
I'LL COMPARE IT WITH DIFFERENT SINEWS FOUND IN MEAT CUTS IN OUR PACKING ROOMS. YOU'LL KNOW WHAT IT IS BY TOMORROW MORNING.

Of all the tribes the only one to be on the increase is the Navajo. She showed trinkets and pictures to illustrate her talk.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

WITH Christmas little more than a month away, each passing day finds the downtown stores filled with more new ideas for gifts. . . . And as always is the case, this year the items seem more attractive than ever before.

* * *

Marianne

Now here's something that would please most any friend—and maybe you'd like to put it on your Christmas list of wants. . . . A French perfumer has designed a new toy for the bathtub—little pink sponges that are such fun, because at first they're little compressed discs—then you drop one in your tub and in the twinkling of an eye they grow to washcloth size—luxurious pink washcloths fragrant with a famous perfume called, "Shocking." . . . This Frenchwoman must have had on her thinking cap when she designed her Christmas packages, because here's another cute one—it's called "Spin and Win"—and when you snap open the lid of the box, you discover a whirling roulette wheel, which proves to be lucky no matter where it stops because it has four baby bottles of "Shocking" perfume attached to it.

* * *

The days of spilling cologne while applying it are gone forever, because a smart, farsighted manufacturer has bottled his in a "syphonet" which sprays the sweet scented liquid into a fine frothy mist. . . . Just to make sure that your closet and clothing have a pleasant aroma, why don't you hang one of those spice boules on one of the hooks—they're bright orange satin and smell much like the old-fashioned pomander balls.

* * *

If you're looking for a present to give a friend who travels a lot, I'll bet you couldn't find anything to please her more than a make-up bag—and the downtown stores are showing a number of attractive ones now. . . . A handy one I saw while shopping yesterday was made of multi-colored striped silk with a rubberized lining . . . it was fitted with bottles for liquids and jars for powder . . . and more important still, a little kit with matching pullman slippers! Another, more conservative kit, was of brown silk with beige trim and chartreuse waterproof lining. . . . This was fitted with bottles in an individual removable bag, washcloth container, and several special pockets. . . . A clever and useful traveling ensemble can be purchased at another local store—the black silk kits are for make-up tissues, washcloth, soap, cosmetics and comb—what more could anyone ask!

* * *

Picture frame perfumes are sure to make anyone's Christmas exciting. . . . These little boxes and bottles have been imported from France by a famous woman cosmetologist, and they do look surprisingly like miniature pictures—one of the prettiest is "Night and Day." . . . Just the gift for your best friend is contained in a transparent box—it's a square bottle of sweet scented spicy carnation perfume nestling in a bed of fluffy little pink and blue flowers.

* * *

SOMETHING else cute for Christmas is a fat and jolly Santa Claus, which when opened reveals a pretty crystal bottle of "Flowers of Rain" cologne. . . . One of your young high school friends would be sure to like the jitterbug twins made of bright colored yarn to dance on her coat lapel.

* * *

IF YOU'RE still in a quandary as to what to give your best beau for Christmas, you'll undoubtedly find just the right thing in a display of sportswear at one of the local stores tomorrow and Friday. . . . These nationally-known items have been packaged in red-and-green plaid boxes to represent best-selling books. . . . For instance, "The Story of the Buck" contains a suede leather and knit sweater jacket in buck color, green of chestnut brown. . . . "Gone Is the Wind" is the name of the volume which has a reversible jacket—all wool reversed with water repellent poplin in camel or green. . . . And a jacket of smooth capeskin leather lined with wool gabardine is found in the volume called "The Cape of Good Hope."

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Golden Rule Class Has Routine Business Meet

There were 21 members and two guests present at the meeting of the Golden Rule class of St. Mark's Lutheran church yesterday when Mrs. Charles House, Springmill street, entertained. Prizes were won by Mrs. Long and Mrs. George Turner. The next meeting will be a covered-dish dinner party and Christmas exchange Dec. 12 at the church.

Psychologist Has P. T. A. Program

Paul Sparks, school psychologist, spoke on "Personality Development of the Child" last night at the regular meeting of the West Fifth street school P. T. A. A. B. Hammon presided, and Mrs. Cleo Flockencier reported on the state convention. The program included a tap dance by Shirley Jean Boyd and acrobatic roller skating by Robert and Lloyd Lewis.

Committees announced yesterday were membership: Mrs. W. J. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stull and Mrs. August Hatzfeld: publicity, Mrs. Katherine Bancroft:: music, Mrs. H. D. Bishop: program, Mrs. J. E. Augustine, Mrs. Ray Oberlin and Miss Leona Snyder; publications and historian, Mrs. Fred Patterson: parent education, Mrs. Robert Zoebst, Mrs. Lloyd Stuck, Sam Taylor: art, Miss Virginia Anderson: health, Mrs. Vern Mann.

INITIATE 12.

Harold McCuen, guest speaker, talked on "The Art of Make-Up." Mrs. Edna Erdenberger, president, was in charge. The Christmas party of the club will be held Dec. 12 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Pilgrim Guild Has Luncheon

Luncheon was served to 53 members and 10 guests of the Pilgrim guild of the First Congregational church yesterday in the library when Mrs. Ethel Channell, chairman, presided. She was assisted with the meal by Mrs. R. N. Campbell, Mrs. W. G. Carr, Mrs. Don Chapman, Mrs. Alfred Cline, Mrs. H. H. Clingan, Mrs. Paul Cropper, Mrs. York Dirlam, Mrs. Chester Ditwiler, Mrs. Kent Myers and Mrs. George Kirtley.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"If that baby's sentenced to death, then you and I would better find reserved seats on the guillotine pronto," she said, "for our time sure hain't far off."

"You're sure she's really all right?" I breathed.

"I wish I were as sure of Heaven as I am that she isn't going there or the more heated place for many moons to come," she retorted, and for a second I sat absolutely motionless with closed eyes, savoring that blessed assurance to the last drop.

In my relief at this knowledge, I forgot for the mament the absorbing melodrama in which we were all involved, and was only recalled to it by Harry Underwood's imperative mandate.

"Get an earful of this," he said, and his wife shrugged her shoulders impatiently.

"Give him both your ears, Madge," she said. "I can only spare one. The stuff Ede's spilling needs half my attention anyway."

I turned to Harry, and he went into action with his "prison murmur," retailing the dialogue between the two plotters exactly as they had uttered it.

The man was the first to speak after the woman had contemptuously asserted that the "dame with the Dicky-bird was no 'G-woman' but somebody in love with him."

"Maybe so, maybe so," the gangster drawled, "but what I'm asking is what's to be done now? It looks as though those two babes had settled down for a long winter. How do we know this bird is going out of here alone tonight, and, if he doesn't how are we going to snatch him?"

"I have it!" she said at last. "You know the faces of every one of the gang we have posted outside, don't you?"

"I ought to," he retorted sulkily. "I put 'em there."

"With your memory you've had plenty of time to forget what they looked like," she retorted caustically. "But you'd better remember 'em. Now you go out there and speak to every man jack of them, and tell 'em this: If Dicky-bird comes out alone, make the snatch as we planned, the first place they can manage it. But if there's anybody with him, they're to tail him until he is alone, relieving each other, but being sure that they have enough together to get him right."

"Suppose the dame doesn't leave him?" the man suggested with a leer.

"Then," the woman answered, "you tell 'em to snatch 'em both."

"Okay," he said. Rising, he strode out of the restaurant.

End Dentist Fears

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Many children live in mortal dread of the dentist. Some older children and adolescents can hardly be driven to his office, and are tortured by their parents who force them to go. Other children go with fear and trembling.

Children who from infancy have the proper food and who, from the time they are very young, visit the dentist every four or six months, rarely or never have occasion for fears about the matter.

Perhaps when we know enough about foods and have character enough to utilize such knowledge we will have little need of a dentist for filling cavaties or extracting teeth.

It is safe to assume, however, that the infant eventually will need dental care. Pick out now a dentist who will care for his teeth. Chooes one who has sympathy for children and understanding of them, and expect to pay him reasonably for his time. This dentist will advise you on the care of your baby's teeth and will fill the smallest cavity is the temporary set as soon as he discovers it. Pain then will practically be ruled out and the permanent set of teeth will have been properly prepared for.

Get Acquainted.

As you go with your tot the first time to the dentist—when the child is two or younger—let him first get acquainted with the dentist, who will show this child his tools, have him sit in the chair, scratch gently about the child's teeth, just for gradual adjustment. As soon as possible, leave the youngster alone with the dentist and go shopping. When the first cavity must be filled, be out of sight and hearing of the child. Go away and in due time return with a toy for the tot.

Don't promise the toy "if you don't cry." Promise and deliver it whether he cries or not. Silently assume, however, that he will not cry. Say nothing about crying. Merely leave him in the dentist's office in a cool and quiet manner. The purpose of the toy is to prepare him for co-operation in the future. He will be less likely to cry as he looks forward to this toy.

A certain lad before the age of five used to beg to go to the dentist so he could "have another toy," and the toys provided him were relatively inexpensive. He and his brother and sister, soon after entering school, began making their own dental appointments and have done so since then. They have taken responsibility for keeping these engagements, going from home to the dental office and back alone. They have gone with no more dread or ceremony, apparently, than when they go to school in the morning.

Without cost, you can receive a graded list of toys for children by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. Do you still have available that selected list of readings on "How to Study?"

A. Yes; just write me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope and I shall send you a copy of the list. I also have a list on "Choosing a Vocation and Preparing for it."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

KILLING A FETISH

FOR YEARS bridge books and bridge authorities have been in the habit of saying that a singleton is of no value if it is in the hand of the player who first bid the trump suit. For purposes of counting up your number of winning tricks, that pedagogy may be sound. But for consideration in the late stages of the bidding it is plumb haywire. Frequently possession of a singleton, with concomitant ability to stop the run of that suit early, produces victory out of what otherwise would have been defeat.

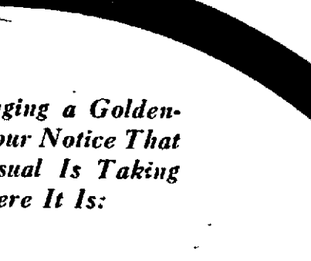
(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding went quite normally on this deal, with East calling 1-Heart, West 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, East 3-Hearts, West 4-Diamonds, East 4-Hearts and South doubling.

Now you figure out the play. There is no earthly way that the declarer can lose more than one trick in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs, unless he terrifically misplays the deal in some way. Had East, however, possessed one more club and one less diamond, the contract would have been set. In other words, the singleton in clubs was vital.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

After South bids 1-Diamond and West 1-Spade here, why is one diamond stopper not enough for sound No Trump bidding to game here by East?

Eating Habits Cause Woes

By MME. QUI VIVE

'Fess up, now, are you this kind of a girl? Do you down a cup of coffee, nibble a piece of toast, fancy you have had breakfast? Do you plan to spend your luncheon hour strolling through the buyways and hunting bargains, contenting yourself with an ice cream soda? When dinner time arrives, are you all tuckered out, too tired to eat? Do you sit down and make your family wonder why you aren't as sweet and jolly as you used to be?

Can't you realize that an engine can't keep going without fuel? Every cell of your body has to have groceries. Hair, teeth, complexion, as well as the rest of you, are dependent on good show. And hurried eating will take a heavy toll, let me tell you. Your beautifying expenses will be something terrible and cosmetics won't help because your beauty griefs are due to unwise living habits.

Rapid eating is an insult to the digestive forces. The stomach, empty and at rest after a fast of several hours, awaits the next consignment. It likes to receive a small portion at a time, with little waits between, so it can treat it and stow it away according to its satisfaction and convenience. Food taken slowly is accompanied on its passage with gastric juices that are necessary for assimilation. No chewing, no interest in food, no gastric liquids.

* * *

Every meal, though it consists of nothing more than bread and cheese, should be a pleasurable, leisurely event, an occasion for relaxation. The family dinner should be the jolliest time of the day. The table should be set daintily, the food placed upon it must be appetizing, conversation gay and interesting. No grills retailed, no sad stories told, no arguments. No rush. Children are inclined to bolt food and tear out to play or get back to their games. Physicians deplore that habit, which is responsible for bawling about tummy ache and nights of restless sleep.

Digestion begins in the mouth with the mastication and insalivation of food. Chewing should be thorough enough to disintegrate the larger portions and to create a free flow of saliva, which includes a substance known as ptyalin that acts favorably upon starchy elements.

ASHLAND—Cast for the play, "One Mad Night" to be presented here by the Ashland Theater Guild Nov. 19, 20 and 21 includes Albert Thomas, Donald Hettinger, Phyllis Chorpening, Helen Bendure, Martha Starr, James Strickling, Margaret Forbes, Virgil Iles, Harold Chandler, Mary McDowell and Robert Timmons.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, November 16.

A PARTICULARLY progressive and productive state of affairs is read from a very interesting chain of planetary configurations. Sudden and surprising events may push things forward at a lively and unprecedented tempo, with changes in plans, objectives and surroundings quite revolutionary or radical in effect. Decidedly important contacts may be made with large corporations, political, diplomatic or fraternal organizations, with which finesse and strategem may be unexpectedly lucrative. There may be delays and impediments but these seem to vanish.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a memorable and notably progressive year, with many major ambitions being swept along with whirlwind and surprising tempo. It is a time for pushing toward new goals, with the prospect of powerful interests, political, diplomatic or fraternal, aiding and abetting. These should be cultivated, as new and constructive plans are promised unexpected co-operation. But do not be discouraged by some delays, postponements or disappointments of a temporary nature, possibly due to a low physical condition.

A child born on this day may be clever, original, shrewd and ambitious, and may attain great heights because of its ingenuity, skill and gracious personality, although its physical constitution may demand attention or safe guarding.

George Uhle Joins Cubs' Coaching Staff.

CHICAGO—(INS)—The National league Chicago Cubs looked to a veteran American league pitcher today to impart the secrets of successful mound work to their budding hurling talent. The newcomer to the Cubs' ranks was George Ernest Uhle, one-time star for the Cleveland Indians. He succeeds Coach Roy Johnson, who resigned.

Ohio State Can Cinch Big Ten Title Saturday

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

WITH Frank Zadworney, right halfback, graduating this year and one more year of competition remaining for No. 1 Fullback Jim Langhurst, Coach Francis Schmidt is likely to experiment next spring to make room for Johnny Hallabrin and the Willard boy in the same varsity backfield . . . Now Hallabrin's only chance of getting into the ball game is when Langhurst is out, and Ohio coaches are beginning to realize that the Mansfield boy is too valuable to keep on the bench . . . Hallabrin has carried the ball 96 yards in 10 plays to top all of his teammates in this department . . . . Ohio State's rivalry with Illinois has probably developed more spectacular games than any other series involving the Bucks . . . Typical of the encounters between these two rivals was the 1920 game . . . . Ohio State was undefeated during the regular season that year; however, it took a "picture" play to beat Illinois . . . . With time left for but one play, with the score tied, the ball was snapped to Workman, Ohio halfback, and he let fly with a pass . . . The gun cracked as the ball took flight. . . .Truck Meyers eagerly clutched the ball and scored to bring the Big Ten title to Columbus.

Blunder Detracts Little From Victory.

THE fact that Notre Dame beat itself on a blunder—Steve Sitko lost the ball attempting to lateral on his own four-yard line after intercepting a forward pass in the end zone—detracts nothing from Iowa's victory last Saturday . . . Notre Dame has been winning just such games all season long . . . Western conference schools seeking to curb drinking in college stadia cite the text of an inscription on the Stadium of Delhi, Greece, as precedent for its program . . . Dated 400 B. C., the inscription forbidding the ancient equivalent of the hip flask in substance reads, "Wine must not be taken into the precinct of Endromes (the Stadium)" . . . . Andy Sabota, who jumped from Tiffin and Class D baseball to a regular spot in Double-A with Toledo last summer, was not the worst hitting shortstop in the American Association with a bat mark of .253, but he was at the bottom of the fielding records . . .

Coaches Add Punch To Zestful Season.

PERHAPS it's all done in the spirit of good clean fun—but the way in which several midwest coaches are winding up and swinging at each other and the officials is adding a lot of good old fashioned punch to this already zestful collegiate football season. . . . Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin's chief gridiron mentor, is the latest to let go with a verbal "roundhouse"—directed at Illinois, which last Saturday whipped Wisconsin 7 to 0. . . . Harry—possibly with tongue in cheek—accused Illinois fans of poor sportsmanship by rudely yelling whenever the Badgers began calling signals. . . . In addition, Stuhldreher let it be known that Wisconsin's movies of the game showed that Jimmy Smith stepped out of bounds in his 82-yard touchdown jaunt. All this, of course, called for comment from Coach Bob Zuppke, to wit "I'm surprised. Harry knows better. Fans go to football games to shout themselves hoarse and wouldn't it be sad to play a game before a crowd of Egyptian mummies? . . . As to whether Smith ran out of bounds movies will never settle it. I've always opposed movies They start too many arguments and prove too little Any way, our movies indicate he didn't step out of bounds." . . . Mal Elward of Purdue recently let go a double-barreled blast charging that the official who ruled on the field goal by which Notre Dame beat Purdue 3 to 0 was not in position to accurately judge the kick

REFUSED PERMISSION TO PLAY AGAINST LIONS

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Dutch Clark swung back into coaching routine today as all personal and club efforts failed to win permission for him to play against his old pupils, Detroit here Sunday when the Lions clash with the Rams in a National League 'grudge' battle.

Last hopes that Clark would be able to resume a playing role were scuttled when Carl Storck of Dayton league president ruled Cleveland would have to buy or trade for Clark's player contract, still held by the Lions.

City League Managers Will Meet Thursday.

Plans for the 1939-40 basketball league season will be furthered at a meeting of the City Class A league at the Y. M. C. A. at 8:30 p. m. Thursday. According to present plans, the league will consist of six teams, with play starting in December.

Managers of teams desiring to affiliate with the circuit are asked to attend the meeting Thursday.

East's Teams Fading

Cornell and Duquesne Fail to Rate as Strong as Fordham and Holy Cross.

By LESLIE AVERY

NEW YORK—(UP)—Cornell and Duquesne are the last two major undefeated, untied football clubs in the east but the suspicion that these are not necessarily the best clubs in the sector is becoming stronger as the season nears its close.

* * *

Despite its perfect record and smashing win over Ohio State, the Big Red from Cornell is fading off into a pasty pink, and Duquesne, first club to prick the Pittsburgh balloon, has had so many narrow escapes, it would not be surprising to see them taken down in their final game against Carnegie Tech, completing one of its worst years.

* * *

Cornell has looked anything but "great" in winning its last two games. The Ithacans blocked a punt that rolled behind the goal line to beat Columbia by one touchdown two weeks ago, but they nosed Colgate by the margin of two points kicked after touchdown last week. Duquesne, lucky to beat Manhattan 7-0 early in the season, had another close shave in nosing North Carolina State by the same score last week.

Fordham and Holy Cross seem to be the ranking eastern clubs today. They took their bumps early in the season from strong southern teams, then hit their stride in convincing fashion.

Fordham, after taking it on the chin from Alabama and Tulane, bounced back to crush Pitt, Rice and Indiana, and they are not expected to have much trouble in winning their third straight intersectional against St. Mary's this week.

* * *

Holy Cross, with only the L. S. U. setback against its record, has rebounded with five straight wins, none by less than two touchdowns. The Crusaders go against Carnegie Tech this week and are expected to win easily from the Skibos, who have lost their last three in a row.

* * *

Cornell will have to outscore a Dartmouth eleven determined to show the east that last week's setback by Princeton was all a mistake. Duquesne will be idle in prepping for Carnegie Tech the following week.

Plymouth Spanks North Fairfield

PLYMOUTH—Plymouth high's six-man football team crushed North Fairfield high, 31 to 6, in a tussle here yesterday afternoon. The Plymouth gridders tallied at least one marker in each frame.

North Fairfield gave the winners a fight in the opening chapter with the score ending 13-6, but Plymouth soon piled up a commanding lead. Hough led the attack with three touchdowns. Kitchin and Cunningham contributed the other markers. A Hough-to-Martin pass added the only extra point.

BARONS SCALP INDIANS. MOVE INTO FIRST PLACE

It's quite a load the Cleveland Barons have to carry this season as champions of the International-American Hockey league and the schedule isn't making it any easier for them.

So far it hasn't worked to any great extent. Cleveland has won four out of five games and by downing the Springfield Indians 5-4 in an overtime game last night moved into a tie with the surprising Indianapolis capitals for the western division lead.

MICHIGAN LOSING FRUTIG FOR BALANCE OF SEASON

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(INS)—Losers in their last two games, Michigan's Wolverines suffered another setback today with announcement that Ed Frutig, outstanding end, will be lost for the season due to a dislocated angle tendon sustained in the Minnesota game. Ace Halfbacks Tom Harmon and Paul Kromer both reported finger sprains, but probably will be ready for the Pennsylvania contest Saturday

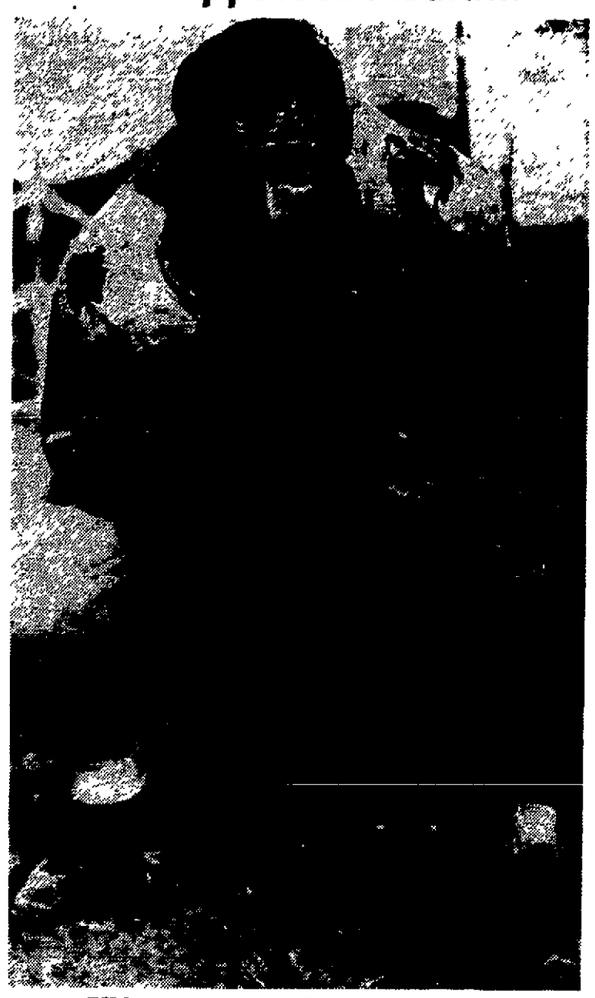
Leads Whippets to Stadium



BILL YOSICK . . . calls signals for Shelby.

Shelby Record Includes Four Victories, Three Defeats, and One Tie.

FOR a team formed from the nucleus of only three veterans, Shelby high school gridders have done real well, Coach Paul Snyder of Mansfield high school believes.

Up to this week, the Whippets' record includes four victories, three defeats and one tie.

* * *

Saturday the Bordertown athletes come to Mansfield for their final game of the season, and followers of the Shelby eleven appear quite certain that the Tygers will not win in a rout.

* * *

Shelby has upset the dope too often in the Mansfield-Shelby rivalry, and Snyder is attempting to guard against a letdown by working the Tygers unusually hard for this late in the season.

The Tygers may bounce back after the Canton McKinley defeat and Snyder hopes that this will be the case as he does not regard Shelby as a "breather."

Shelby's victims this year were Norwalk, Bucyrus, Mt. Vernon and Galion. The Whippets were beaten by Ashland, Marion and Crestline, the Ashland defeat coming by a one-point margin.

* * *

The Whippets suffered a severe let-down against Willard, and permitted the weak Railroaders to obtain a scoreless tie.

* * *

Last year's veterans on this fall's team are Bill Yosick, Bob Lehman and Stetson Oster. Yosick, who was shifted from a line position to the backfield this year, is regarded as the No. 1 ball player of the year in the N. C. O. conference in which the Whippets finished second.

Giants Purchase Lighting System

NEW YORK—A 200-million candlepower lighting system, most powerful on any sports field in the world, will shine down on the Giants at the Polo Grounds next season in Manhattan's introduction to night baseball.

The National Exhibition company, owner of the team, have ordered the Westinghouse Electric Supply company to install a series of 836 floodlights of 1500-watt capacity, club officials announced yesterday at a luncheon for sports writers.

Seven games will be played under the lights in 1940, it was stated. The first is tentatively scheduled for mid-June. The floodlighting will be bright enough to light 4,000 homes or to make Broadway's entire 13-mile length five times as bright as Times Square on New Year's eve.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—Salvadore Bartolo, 126, Boston, outpointed Dusty Brown, 129, Fall River, Mass.

LOS ANGELES — Richard Polite, 120½, New Orleans, knocked out Gene Espinosa, 129, Philippines, (4).

Illini Defeat Will Do Trick If Gophers Win

Coach Zuppke Moans About Illinois' Chances, But He Gains Few Sympathizers.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP)—Foxy Bob Zuppke isn't talking much these days, and when he does he moans about Illinois' chances of victory Saturday against Ohio State, Big Ten leader and top-heavy choice to win undisputed possession of the title.

Nobody is paying much attention to his moaning because that's characteristic of all grid teachers—but Zuppke just isn't "in" when you begin talking in terms of upsetting Ohio State. An upset, in his book, is when a team given absolutely no chance to win does just that.

That was the situation when the Illini blasted Michigan from the ranks of the undefeated and untied two weeks ago. Up to that time the Illini had scored one touchdown while losing three games and tying one.

* * *

"I don't know anything about Ohio State," says Zuppke. "Our boys are in terrible shape. Three of them, Quarterback Ralph Ehni, Guard Wes Martin and Center Bill Lenich, haven't even dressed this week. We don't have enough good reserves."

* * *

Which is true, but Zuppke failed to mention that four of his first stringers played the full 60 minutes in the last three games, two of which the Illini won.

While the odds are all against Illinois springing another upset this Saturday. Zuppe tipped his hand somewhat by giving his squad some new plays Monday to use against the Bucks, indicating the underdogs would stand plenty of watching.

While outmanned in most other departments, the Illini have probably as good a punter as there is in the conference in Ehni, one of Illinois' iron men

* * *

Coach Francis Schmidt has been giving his Bucks intensive passing and kicking drills the past two days to prepare for the invasion of the Champaign squad. Much time has been spent on spot kicking, implying Coach Schmidt has wholesome respect for the opposing safety men.

* * *

The Bucks need only this game to tie for the title. And if they win and Minnesota defeats Iowa, the crown would be theirs alone.

* * *

Iowa is grooming an aerial attack for the Minnesota test Saturday. . . . Nile Kinnick, ace back, has been in the role of receiver in practice with Ed McClain and Floyd Dean the tossers. . . . Bob Peterson has been promoted to left halfback on the Wisconsin varsity. . . . Purdue, the Badgers' foe this week, has lost Carl Verplank, senior guard, for the last two games because of injuries. . . . The Boilermakers are stressing blocking in practice. . . .

* * *

INDIANA, which owns a neat passing attack, is concentrating on a more effective ground game in preparation for the game with Michigan State. . . . Another team seeking improved blocking and more of it is Michigan, victim of Illinois and Minnesota. . . . The Wolves seek a path back to the victory trail against Pennsylvania. . . . Harmon missed practice with a stomach ailment. . . . Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern said after Saturday's defeat by Purdue he "never thought it possible for a team to gain 330 yards from scrimmage and block two kicks and not score." . . .

THEATERS

FROM The Hollywood Front: Although the story was a little late in getting out, Hollywood is still giggling over Lupe Velez' stunt at the opening of "The Real Glory." She and her escort dressed in old clothes and stood with the mob of fans outside the theater, and whenever a star appared at the microphone that Lupe doesn't like, she gave a terrific Bronx cheer. . . . "Drums Along the Mohawk" is being raved over for its Technicolor, which is among the finest to date. . . . Penny Singleton, who couldn't get anywhere in pictures until she clicked in the Blondie series, has just purchased a home in Hollywood for her parents and has set up a $20,000 trust fund for her youngster. . . .

* * *

History Making Era.

Even though "Drums Along the Mohawk" fails to bring the novel's deeply impressive story to the screen, it still is one of the best of the early American dramas. It gives some idea of what the country was like then, except that one misses the virgin forests on all sides, and it pictures the trials and rigorous life which the early settlers were forced to lead. Claudette Colbert does a good job of acting. Henry Fonda plays the young frontiersman and Roger Imhoff as Col Herkimer, and Edna May Oliver as the widow, head the supporting cast. It remains at the Ohio through Thursday.

* * *

Lusty Melodrama.

"Jamaica Inn" is a lusty melodrama laid against the somber, rocky coast of Cornwall, England, a locale which is a fitting background for a tragic plot. Charles Laughton as Sir Humphrew, plays an odious old reprobate, who, under cloak of his authority, is leader of a band of outlaws who use Jamaica Inn as their headquarters. The action is laid in the 17th century. This picture, with "Blondie Brings Up Baby" remains at the Madison through today. The theater will be dark tomorrow afternoon with the Jackie Coogan stage show playing there Thursday night.

* * *

"Broadway Serenade."

A problem play of two careers that refused to run in smooth parallel channels is told in "Broadway Serenade," an attraction at the Ritz today and Thursday. Jeanette MacDonald plays the opera star, whose husband is a musician. Lew Ayers, Ian Hunter and Frank Morgan head the supporting cast. The second feature is "Inspector Hornleigh," a mystery story with Scotland Yard men running into a series of murders that threaten to involve one of the highest state departments.

* * *

Forgotten Players.

A re-issue of "I Cover the Water Front," scheduled for showing at the Park tomorrow and the remainder of the week, recalls two once popular players who are all but forgotten now. One is Ben Lyon who dropped into oblivion soon after the advent of talking pictures, and the other is the late Ernest Torrence, one of the greatest of character actors. Of the trio that had the major roles in the picture, only Claudette Colbert is still in the movie heavens. "Racketeers of the Range" with George O'Brien is the second feature.

* * *

War Theme.

The tragic impact of modern warfare on women of belligerent countries is one of the phases of "Grand Illusion," the imported film which is being shown at the Majestic this week The picture was given the National Board of Reviews' award last year for the best picture, either American or foreign, shown in any country. Dita Parlo, who made one American picture, plays the German mother whose husband, father and three brothers are killed at the battle of Tannenburg during the World war. The other film is "Lucky Night" with Myrna Loy and Robert Taylor.

Henry's Troubles Provide Laughs In Stage Comedy

Of course you know Henry Aldrich—he's the boy who lives next door, the neighbor's high school kid who has a positive genius for getting into jams, and who recently has been glorified by Clifford Goldsmith in the stage play, "What A Life."

Henry and his family come to the stage of the Medison theater Thursday night in the first legitimate theater offering the city has seen in more than a year.

"What A Life" is a hilarious comedy with a serious side. It starts out in the lightest of comedy veins, but before it has ended, it has given parents everywhere something to think about.

All three acts are laid in the office of the principal of a high school, because the office is the scene of most of Henry's troubles.

The cast which brings the Goldsmith play to Mansfield is made up of familiar names. Jackie Coogan heads the cast, playing the role of Henry Aldrich.

Another familiar name in the cast of the stage play is Frank McGlynn, who is famous for his Lincoln roles both on the stage and the screen. Josephine Dunn, one-time movie star, and Cyrilla Dorne lead the feminine players. The show plays in Canton tonight and is expected in Mansfield Thursday afternoon.

PARK TOURS UP

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The national park service of the Interior Department reports that war-troubled 1939 was a "good year" for Hawaii and Alaska parks. "With travel abroad so uncertain and disturbed," the service reported, "Americans turned to their own peaceful territories outside the continental United States." Mount McKinley National Park, Alaska, reports a 52 per cent increase in visitors over 1938, and Hawaii National Park a boost of 15½ per cent.

STOCK LEADERS UP FRACTIONS IN MILD RALLY

Goodrich in Demand Following Announcement of Company's First Dividend Since 1937.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market jogged along a highly selective course today and leaders added fractions to around a point.

Gainers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Anaconda, Westinghouse, du Pont, Caterpillar and Sears Roebuck.

Goodrich was in demand following announcement of the company's first dividend on the common since Sept. 1937.

Observers noted the assertion of "Iron Age" that pressure from steel consumers for delivery "provides strong evidence" that much of the production of the industry is quickly passing into finished products and that "inventories of most consumers still are far below normal."

So far, the periodical said, the industry is unable to detect signs of a backing up of the flow of steel from the mills to the ultimate consumer. Most companies in the last ten days, it declared, have made no progress in reducing backlogs.

Electric power production for the week ended Nov. 11 dropped a little from the preceding week's output but was still 13.8 per cent ahead of the 1938 comparative.

BOARD PLANNING DEDICATION OF GALION SCHOOL

Expect New Building to Be Completed in Time for Exercises on Jan. 8.

GALION—At the regular meeting of the Galion Board of Education, Tuesday night, the dedication for the new East School building was tentatively set for the week of Jan. 8, when it is expected that all equipment will be installed in the building.

School opened Monday in the building, with only half of the equipment installed, it was stated. Chester Stover, principal of the building, is chairman of the dedication committee.

Fixtures Purchased.

The board passed a resolution verifying the decision at the last special session regarding the purchase of electrical fixtures for the new school. Bills for the month which were read and approved for payment amounted to $1,200. It was estimated that the balance in the school treasury on Dec. 1 will amount to $1,000 at which time receipts are expected to be in.

The boiler which had been used in the old East school was sold by the board to St. Patrick's parochial school for $30. It was also reported that repairs to the water and gas lines had been made at the Senior High school building.

Supt. O. E. Hill reported that for the past four years Galion teachers have had 100 per cent membership in both the National and Ohio Educational Associations. He also told of the recent election the high school held on city candidates, and a similar election which is being held for class officers of the school.

Propose Council to Study Economic Effects of War

EXPERTS MAP PROGRAM FOR 21 REPUBLICS

Inter-American Advisory Unit to Get Proposal at First Meeting Tomorrow.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Immediate creation of an inter-American council to parry the economic effects of Europe's war, was proposed by the United States today as the inter-American advisory committee, formed at the recent western hemisphere consultative conference, in. Panama, convened in Washington for its first meetings.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and State Department Economic Adviser Dr. Herbert Feis drafted the plan, and were prepared to present it at the advisory committee's first business meeting tomorrow. Today the representatives of the 21 western hemisphere republics making up the committee, gathered for an organization meeting.

Plans Provisions.

Under the Welles-Feis plan the council would be set up at the current meeting, formally charged with the duties outlined at the Panama conference and directed to:

"1.—Study and propose. . . . The most effective measures for mutual cooperation to lessen or offset any dislocations which may arise in the trade of the American republics and to maintain trade among themselves, and, as far as possible, their trade with the rest of the world, which may be affected by the present war, on the basis of those liberal principles of trade approved at the . . . International conferences of American states and the inter-American conference for the maintenance of peace.

"2.—Consider any problem of monetary relationships, foreign exchange management or balance of international payment situation, which may be presented to it by the government of any of the American Republics, and to offer to that government whatever recommendations it deems advisable."

Backing up this immediate work, the Welles-Feis formula for western hemisphere unity, neutrality and protection contemplated establishment of two additional committees, both of a permanent character. One would take over three categories of work set out at the Panama conference, embracing:

1.—A flexible, "practical and satisfactory" system for stabilizing all monetary and commercial relationships between the American republics.

2.—Studies looking into feasibility of establishing a single financial institution to "insure permanent financial cooperation between the treasuries" of all western hemisphere nations.

3.—Studies lookin to creation of new industries in American nations, and negotiation of additional commercial treaties between the United States and its neighbors to the south.

COUNTY RELIEF BILL CUT $281 DURING OCTOBER

Report Reveals 167 Persons Dropped From Rolls, Total Expenditure $9,303.

The general upturn in business conditions was reflected today in the monthly relief report which showed a decrease of nearly $300 in relief expenditures in Mansfield and Richland county during October.

Relief Director J. Verne Finney's monthly report, which does not include the Shelby expenditures, showed that 167 persons had been dropped from the relief rolls duing October.

Total expenditures for relief was listed at $9,303, or $281 less than the amount spent during September.

Of the total expenditures, $5,527 went to provide food, clothing and shelter for 214 families and 72 single persons in Mansfield and $3,776 went to support 119 families and 40 single persons outside of Mansfield and Shelby.

Cites Improved Conditions.

Finney attributed the decrease to the improved industrial conditions, pointing out that at this time of the year relief costs normally show a sharp rise due to fuel and clothing costs.

His report disclosed that of the 283 persons assigned to WPA last month, 103 did not report for work, due mostly, he said to the fact that they had gone back to private employment.

Another 43 persons left their jobs on WPA to return to industry.

Finney said that nearly 14 tons of surplus commodities purchased by the Federal Surplus Commodity corporation was distributed to relief clients in October. These included cereal, butter, cornmeal, flour, beans, potatoes and apples.

During the month, 1,363 garments valued at $1,614 were made by WPA employes on a sewing project and turned over to relief headquarters for distribution.

Crowds Flock to Great Medicine Sale at Local Drug Store.

The great sale of RUX Compound still goes on, and each day the fame of this remarkable medicine spreads throughout Mansfield and vicinity as more and more people hear from the lips of grateful users their amazing stories of relief.

An Amazing Experience.

Only one of a flood of letters recently received is this statement of happy relief by Mr. John N. Horton, pioneer resident of Ontonagon, Mich.

I have been having Rheumatic Pain attacks which at times were quite intense. Sometimes I could hardly bear the pains caused by putting on or taking off my coat. Only those who have suffered Rheumatic Pains know the suffering I endured. I experimented with many suggested reliefs. Finally I found RUX and am happy to say that after taking it I feel so different. RUX relieves those sharp Rheumatic Pain attacks and I am so grateful that I expect to continue its use."

Mr. John N. Horton

If you are a Rheumatic Sufferer—if your body is racked with sharp, stabbing muscular pain attacks that make life a torment—if you roll and toss through sleepless nights, feel unfit for work or pleasure because of cruel Rheumatic, Neuralgic or Neuritic pains, you should go to the Hursh Drug Store today and ask them about this remarkable medicine. RUX $1.50 and $6 at all good drug stores.—Adv.

BIOGRAPHER SAYS FRANKLIN WOULD HAVE BEEN NEW DEALER

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA — If Benjamin Franklin were alive today he probably would be a New Dealer, says Dr. Carl Van Doren, whose biography of the colonial states-man-author won the Pulitzer Prize.

"Franklin's was the most eminent mind, I think, that ever existed in America," Van Doren commented in an interview.

"He would have been a New Dealer because he fundamentally was a man of the people. He never patented any of his inventions—he believed they should be made available to all. He was the most radical member of the Constitutional Convention.

"Of course he would have been a printer. His will read: 'I, Benjamin Franklin, printer.' I have no doubt that if he were alive today he would be printing books and papers just as he did two centuries ago. He might have ended up as the biggest printer in the United States of today, but I think he would have been head of the printers' union as well."

Franklin would have liked the modern world and probably would have become a great scientist—"an Einstein whom people could understand," according to Van Doren.

"Finally, Franklin would probably have become a diplomat," the author concluded. "He was the best ambassador we ever had in Europe by far. His was really a diplomatic mind.

"He would have been one ambassador who really knew what country he represented. He would have known he was representing America, and America only."

Carries Mail On 3,000-Mile Hike Across Country

DENVER — (INS) — Somewhere afoot on the great plains of the West E. Richard Nivala, hardy world-traveling Finn, is slogging along on the second stage of his 3,000 mile "jaunt" from Seaside, Ore., to New York.

Nivala will travel the entire distance by walking and expects to reach his destination some time in May. He left Seaside last Aug. 27.

Nivala recently arrived in Rock Springs, Wyo., to rest up and secure warmer clothing for the winter months on the road. He is carrying a pouch of letters to President Roosevelt, Postmaster General Farley and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. He was soon on the road again, heading eastward across Wyoming accompanied only by his dog, Duke, who wears leather boots to protect his feet.

The trip is an attempt to show the difference in time between mail as carried by ancient Egyptian carriers and modern methods of transportation, according to Nivala.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1939.

It is gratifying to note that California voters decided against adopting stage money as a medium of exchange.

Viewing the political debris just after an election, a young man may be excused for deciding that there must be some surer way of earning a living.

A fashion note is to the effect that eleven hats are required to complete the outfit of "the man about town"—and even the college boy should have one available for an emergency.

Sane Business Recovery

A GENERATION of American business men has arisen which holds that peace orders are more profitable than war orders. There is no orgy of profiteering now, when precedent would lead Americans to expect one. A sane business revival had started before war orders began to pour in; and this revival seems so natural and sound that if the war orders should stop, it would not result in a slump.

Business men and business advisers have mostly insisted on avoiding price inflation, and acquiescence in this policy looks like a protection against other forms of inflation. In short, Americans are acting calmly and sensibly in the face of temptations to inflate and expand overmuch.

"It goes without saying," observes the National City Bank of New York, "that these policies are not only in the interest of the country generally, but of business itself. A war boom running without restraint, and followed by the inevitable depression, would devastate all business.

"The hope in the present situation is for improvement that is independent of war orders and can hold without them. If costs are kept down and prices kept at levels which consumers can afford to pay for goods, the first essential to keep trade moving will be realized. This is the challenge to business. Investment in new plant to meet war orders is not the type desired, unless the plant can support itself in peacetime also."

Lewis Assesses Miners

SOME IDEA of the extent to which members of a union can be penalized by "check-off" collection of special assessments is gained by considering a recent action of executives of the United Mine Workers who are raising a fund for political use by assessing members $2 each.

This is the union over which John L. Lewis exercises absolute control and members were given no vote in the matter of assessment—the closed shop and "check-off" making it obligatory for mine operators to deduct the amount from miners' pay and turn it over to the union.

With a "closed shop" in the important mining industry making union membership essential to securing and holding a job, and with mine operators made the collection agency for dues and assessments, the danger of placing dictatorial power in the hands of one man, or small associated group, can scarcely be overestimated.

Such compulsory contributions to political activities with which individual members may not be in sympathy represent a dangerous phase of labor leadership which may well be regarded with distrust, for the way would thus be opened for a few top-notchers in the labor movement to acquire an immense fund for any political or partisan use they might decide upon.

The substantial progress that organized labor has made in this country within the past several decades is largely attributable to public acceptance of sensible policies carried through under sound leadership, not to the radical tendencies of a certain type of self-seekers who occasionally attain positions of authority.

This assessment against the miners, for political use, deserves thought by all persons who are concerned about the welfare of American workers.

Problem of Family Deficits

DURING the fiscal year 1935-36 two-thirds of the nation went into debt. The lower third spent $92 "per consumer unit" more than it received. In the next group the average deficit was $19. In that same year, however, another third of the nation did so well that it saved nearly a fifth of its income.

When the total deficit of the first two groups is taken from the total savings of the third, it leaves a net national saving of $6,000,000,000.

People with the larger incomes and the savings bought half of the total food sold, more than half of the shelter, clothing, medical and personal care, and 71 to 77 per cent of the recreation, automobiles and educational supplies.

These figures, compiled by the National Resources Planning board, are thought-provoking. If American democracy is facing a crisis, as many people say, and if it is seriously threatened, the trouble may lie more in such a situation as the board depicts than in the propaganda efforts of foreign ideological "isms."

Solving the economic problem of the nation—increasing production of real wealth, increasing employment and spreading wealth around—is doubtless the most important step in strengthening democracy.

Trapping the Sun's Heat

THE Massachusetts Institute of Technology is building on its campus, for experimental purposes, a house that will be in some respects the most modern dwelling in America. Its big trick is to capture "solar radiation," otherwise known as sunshine, in glass "heat traps" on the roof. This solar heat will be stored in insulated tanks in the basement, presumably in the form of hot water, and will be expected to keep the house warm in the winter.

The plan has already been tried in a small way by some private experimenters in this country. Apparently there is no reason why, in any place which has plenty of sunshine, homes cannot be built with special roofs and tanks to serve such a purpose. It may even be possible to turn the heat into a form that can be concentrated or "stepped up" and used for cooking.

Some experiments made in hot climates have shown, too, the possibility of turning solar heat directly into electric power, by the use of metal plates. Such an idea may yet be applied in some of the sunnier states.

Observation by Ann Sheridan: "Oomph gets me no more dates than any other girl, and no marriage proposals"—which leaves the real meaning of that intriguing trait still in doubt.

Dad's sales resistance reaches a low ebb when Mother and the children join forces with the new-car salesman.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Many men talk about putting a penny away for a rainy day, but Johnny Green follows the interesting variation of "banking" tunes against the time of need, when his imagination fails him or when the time seems right for a particular type of song.

He kept "Body and Soul" in a trunk for four years, and ever since that experience he has toyed with the idea of building up a "fund" of melodies instead of releasing them willy-nilly upon composition.

The daily recurrence of long ago favorites has convinced Green that melody is timeless, and that only the superficiality of words change. "Wishing," for instance, is 19 years old. "I Cried For You" was knocked out by Gus Arnheim in 1924. Both these songs are making a lot of money today. "And The Angels Sing" is a variation of an old Hebrew folk song, dating back to the time-dimmed dawn of feudalism. "Our Love" and "Moon Love" stem from Tschaikowsky.

With this in mind, the estimable Mr. Green has made his first two deposits—"Stranger Things Have Happened" and "Little Big Shot." They're carefully filed away in his strong box, held against a rainy day.

* * *

VERY often I see a kid of about 15 in one of the subway stations, Utica avenue, to be exact, who makes his living selling some form of merchandise. And when I saw him today it occurred to me that I have never seen him hawking the same thing twice. Today, for instance, he was selling razor blades. Yesterday it was pocket combs. The day before that, suspenders.

* * *

GARY COOPER'S penchant for ducking publicity probably has resulted in more misunderstanding of a great guy than any instance that comes to mind. I've mentioned it before but it's worth coming back to.

Gary's a cowboy who knows his lobsters, a Montana hombre who can hobnob with his social register wife's folks down at fashionable Southampton and come out a favorite son-in-law, a skeet shooter who doesn't have to salaam to the best of them but still a guy who can wrap his long shanks around a bronc and pull a six-gun in the most acceptable Wild-Bill-Hickock manner.

Shy spotlight-dodger that he is, Gary loosens under the circumstances of good fellowship, talks pictures no end: says he saw an old print of "The Virginian" the other day and thinks it's funny how it seems that no western made since or before ever had anything in it that "The Virginian" hasn't. Right he was, too. Owen Wister just about started and ended the formula, even if there have been others that approached it in excitement and character delineation.

Gary says also that filming desert pictures like "Beau Geste" is hard work, because you get sand in your sinus; that the only picture he ever made he'd like to do again is "Seven Days' Leave"; and that if the writing johnnies toss as many barbs at "The Real Glory" as they did at "Beau Geste," he'll do that remake and follow it with another version of "Mr. Deeds."

Rapid Increase In Tenant Farming

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WHY has tenant farming increased so rapidly in the United States in recent years? Three or four decades ago, when one spoke of an American farmer, he meant the owner of a farm—not a renter or sharecropper; in effect, a peasant, of the European sort.

Today our farm tenancy is on a 42 per cent basis. Moreover, our farm population has been shrinking. In 1920 we had 30 per cent of Americans on the land.

Now it's only 25 per cent. The others have been driven into the cities, to compete with urban labor—of which we have a decided surplus, as per our unemployment statistics.

Senator Henrik Shipstead offers an explanation. I quote the Minnesotan because he's about the best farm authority in congress. Maybe it's queer that a dentist should be so, but he is.

"We have had," says the senator, "six years in which to test out the theory that the less we produce (governmental crop limitations) and the fewer farmers we have, the more wealthy we shall be.

"The contrary has been proved, of which there's evidence a plenty.

Feeding the World.

During the last war period the American farmer was told that he must feed the world, and he did. He didn't have the necessary cash, but he borrowed it from banks. They were short-term loans.

"Then came the post-war crash. The banks had to have their money. So the farmers were induced to mortgage their land to bail out the bankers. The War Finance and Farm Mortgage corporations were federally created to enable them to do so.

"It worked, as to the banks.

"But the farmers presently began to find themselves being sold out under mortgage foreclosures.

"Officialdom points with pride to the fact that our farm mortgage indebtedness has been greatly reduced. It's true. It's been reduced by $2,400,000,000. How has it been reduced, though? It's been reduced by repriving the farmer of his home and land, and transforming him into a tenant or chasing him into the city.

Figures! Can They Lie?

"In 1910 our total farm mortgage debt was $3,300,000,000. It amounted to less than 10 per cent of what all our farm lands and buildings were valued at. The peak of the farm mortgage load was reached in 1928, when it was 20 per cent of the assessed valuation of our land and buildings.

"Our farm mortgages today total about what they did in 1920. Then they were $7,800,000,000. Now they're about $7,250,000,000.

"But in 1920 land and buildings were valued at $68,000,000,000. The mortgage debt represented about 12 per cent of that. By 1937 the value of land and buildings had been cut almost in half—down to $35,000,000,000. The mortgage debt had been reduced, too, but instead of being 12 per cent of the property's assessed valuation, it was 22 per cent.

"In terms of underlying values the smaller debt of 1937 is almost twice as hard to carry as one somewhat larger in 1920.

"The farmer isn't as well able to carry it, either. In 1920 his gross income was $13,500,000,000. In 1938 it was $8,882,000,000. The exchange value of his produce has shriveled.

"There are those who refer to the reduction in our farm mortgage indebtedness as an accomplishment. But how has it been reduced? In a period of a decade almost one-third of the farms in this country have changed hands through forced sales. That's how.

"Does that explain why farm tenancy is increasing?"

Writing Without Ease.

Most authors find it difficult enough to write a novel without setting up for themselves any artificial hurdles. But the late Ernest Vincent Wright chose to place himself under an extraordinary handicap even before he began. In an effort to prove that the letter E, ordinarily used five times more than any other in the alphabet, was not indispensable, he wrote a book, recently published, never once using the letter E, or even abbreviations of words with E's in them. It's nice to know, of course, that this can be done. But the thought of life without e's is not one we care to dwell on for long.

In the first place, there would be no bEginning and no End. There would be no sIEEp. There would be food, but pEopIE couldn't Eat it. There would be no lovE and no hatE. TimE would have to come to a standstill and lifE would obviously have to be something different from what it is now.

Grateful as we are to Mr. Wright for proving that the feat can be accomplished, it reminds us of the man who knocked his head against the wall to have the pleasure of stopping.—Washington Post.

How Boil Crops Are Cultivated.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We are frequently interrogated as to how to stop crops of boils, and as to why boils tend so often to follow one another in a succession of aggravating infections.

The cause of boils is one of the pus-forming germs, usually staphylococcus, and it is quite possible that a special variety of staphylococcus must be present on the skin to cause the boil. Staphylococci are in the air everywhere and constantly on the skin of the hands, face and neck.

The site of boils is usually in a hairy region of the skin, the forearm and the neck being the most frequent habitations. Undoubtedly, we must hold the hair follicles mechanically responsible for the formation of boils.

It is easy to see, then, that if a special variety of staphylococcus does make an entrance into a hair follicle and cause a boil, when that boil breaks, the pus spread over the surrounding skin containing the particular caustive organism may easily invade the hair follicles in the region and create the "crop" of boils. Besides this, the immunity induced by a boil is not very vigorous, and it even looks as if instead of creating immunity, one boil creates a hypersensitiveness to others.

Preventing Boils.

To prevent crops of boils then, the simplest and what has been proved in practice to be the most successful method, is to prevent the pus of one boil from being smeared over the surrounding skin. The treatment of a well-developed boil is very simple, although it should be in the hands of a surgeon. When the core forms, the patient, rightly, feels that that is the end of that particular bit of trouble.

When a patient has had a series of boils and reddened area is detected about the shaft of a hair, the beginning of a new one may be suspected. It is possible sometimes to abort its development by boring down the air shaft with a needle, the point of which has been dipped in carbolic acid. The repeated application of tincture of iodine to a developing boil may somewhat limit its growth.

Poulticing is a time-honored method of treating boils, but surgeons believe that it tends to spread the infection to new areas by incubating the bacteria as they escape and macerating the surrounding skin. Hot dressings of saturated boric acid are not open to this objection. Such a hot compress should be generous and must be kept hot and continued for several hours a day.

Carbuncles Similar.

Carbuncles are diffuse infections of the skin similar to boils, except that boils infect a single pocket. The back of the neck is the common site for carbuncles. A large number of skin follicles and the constant pressure by the collar are responsible for the frequency of the involvement of this region. Women nowadays do not have carbuncles of the neck, whereas in the old days of the stiff whalebone collar they were very common.

Carbuncles are far more serious and more difficult to treat than ordinary boils, and definitely require professional rather than home care.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Roosevelt cabinet meetings usually are not very stimulating affairs. Madame Perkins frequently goes into details regarding a relatively obscure strike. More recently John Carmody has given loquacious reports on the Federal Works Administration. During these, the cabinet looks bored, and waits for private talks with the president when the real decisions are made.

But last week's cabinet session over the transfer of ships to Panama registry was just opposite. It was one of the most important meetings held recently.

Roosevelt talked for one hour about the maritime problem created by the Neutrality Act and gave various reasons for permitting the United States Lines to transfer eight of its old merchant vessels to the Panama flag.

But when he finished, every member of the cabinet was against him. Attorney General Murphy was vigorously opposed. So also were Harold Ickes and Jim Farley. But the man who talked the longest against the transfer was Cordell Hull. He was consistently and emphatically of the opinion that the ship transfer would be a violation of the spirit of the neutrality act.

Confronted with this unanimous opposition, the president bowed to the judgment of his cabinet. The ship transfer plan was put on the shelf.

Hull's Victory.

CABINET members who participated in the debate considered the decision an important victory for Secretary of State Hull.

For in the hot, behind-the-scenes battle over ships, Roosevelt was torn between two powerful groups. On one side was the high-pressure urging of Admiral Emory Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission (and Lindbergh's cousin), who was backed by a potent shipping lobby. Also important was the president's own personal sympathy for any move to keep American ships afloat.

On the other side was Hull, the entire cabinet and also most of the congressional leaders. Just before the cabinet met, Speaker Bankhead lunched with Roosevelt and told him that regardless of the legality of the ship transfer, the country was sure to consider the plan a violation of the neutrality act—at least in spirit.

Note—The maritime commission, although bowing to the cabinet, still maintains that the ship transfer is perfectly legal and may trot out the plan again.

Ambassador Steinhardt.

AMBASSADOR Laurence Steinhardt is getting a big hand, even from some of the career boys who don't like him, for the forthright job he is doing at Moscow.

Steinhardt has one quality so necessary in Russia—he won't take No for an answer. He is indefatigable, talks back to Molotov and Potemkin, and doesn't believe in the Oriental policy of delay.

He is shadowed almost everywhere he goes in Moscow, and any Russian who becomes intimate with him is also shadowed. This constant surveillance of his ambassador has considerably irritated Roosevelt and has contributed in part to the strained relations with Russia.

However, the state department, none too enthusiatic over Steinhardt at first, is anxious to keep him on the job.

Steinhardt is the nephew of Sam Untermeyer, famous New York attorney and supporter of the president. Both he and Steinhardt were heavy contributors to the Roosevelt campaign.

No Labor Peace.

INSIDE reason why there was no White House statement following the Green-Lewis conferences with the president was the fact that there was nothing to say. Neither labor leader made any promises.

Green declared the A. F. of L. was willing to resume peace negotiations, but frankly said he didn't think they would get anywhere. He contended that Lewis didn't want peace and would never agree to terms.

Lewis was equally skeptical of further parleys. He declared the CIO was ready tomorrow to return to the A. F. of L. fold, provided that the entire CIO membership was accepted. But this, he told Roosevelt, the A. F of L. persistently refuses to do.

And until the A. F. of L. does agree, added Lewis grimly, there can be no peace, because anything short of that would mean suicide for the CIO.

The president didn't argue the matter. But he indicated that he wasn't abandoning his efforts to effect a get-together. He told Lewis he would soon invite him for another talk.

Reason for Roosevelt's persistence is the behind-the-scenes encouragement of Sidney Hillman, head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and co-founder of the CIO. Hillman is a strong advocate of peace and believes that despite the many obstacles, an accord can be patched up if both camps will make concessions. However, he stands firmly with Lewis against anything less than AFL acceptance of the full CIO membership.

New Deal Widows.

GOLF WIDOWS have nothing on the wives of zealous New Deal officials.

Mrs. George Grant Mason, jr., beauteous wife of the dynamic young member of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, sees so little of him, she tells friends, that she practically has to make an "appointment" with her husband to discuss family matters.

Mason works from 12 to 16 hours a day. Recently, he was so tied up with official duties arising out of the European war that he never met some out-of-town guests who stayed three days in his Georgetown home.

Another New Deal "widow" is charming Mrs. Leon Henderson, whose husband is a slave-driving member of the Securities and Exchange commission, also is conducting some of the monopoly hearings. In order to keep up with both he frequently gets to his desk at 6 a. m.

Merry-Go-Round.

FEW are aware of it, but a serious and effective candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination next year is Speaker William Bankhead. The witty Alabaman is making no open campaign for the office, but he has his lightning-rod up . . . The adjournment of congress has meant no vacation for senate Republican Floor Leader Charles McNary. He is just as busy as ever, catching up with a mountain of correspondence and taking care of numerous Oregon problems . . . Fourteen male students in Houston are being taught how to buy food, plan menus and manage a household.

Man on the Job

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TRAVELING north along a main highway, I saw a sign, "one way traffic—drive slow." Half the road was broken up. Uneven places of concrete had been hauled away in dump trucks, and the brick on top had been piled in a broad dry wall along the berm. Farther on, a hundred or more workmen were chipping rough places from the sides of the bricks, so that they might be used again. A sign said, "WPA Project." I had seen similar signs upon uncompleted buildings, bridges and excavations, where groups of men were working.

I was one of a long line of traffic, following a high red truck. We were halted by a swarthy little man with a soiled red flag. He had the short, straight build of a Napoleon, and he seemed proud of his job as traffic manager. I reflected that he would be too diminutive a man for a heavier task. He waved a too eager driver back into line, and gave the truck the right of way. As I followed it, I scanned his thin, determined face more closely, and remarked, in passing: "You're doing a good job, here."

He smiled at me, as to a friend, and shouted in good American slang. "You tella me!"

I knew then that he was of foreign birth or parentage, and glad to be just where he was. He swung that flag with dutiful determination that would not have swerved an inch even for a governor or a president. I doubt not but what he would have treated an elephant and a donkey much the same, had they come his way.

His broad-soled shoes were heavy and wet. His overalls and denim jumper were splashed and spattered with muddy water, flipped by wheels of passing cars. It seemed to typify the WPA. He slowed up traffic and he made things safer for us all . . . safer for motorists and for those fellow workmen of his, who without a job, would have been idle and upon a dole. I reflected that what I had told him was a genuine truth. He was doing a good job. And the challenge of his friendly grin came back—"You tella me!"

POLAND STILL WARS ON NAZIS ON HIGH SEAS

Three Polish Destroyers Which Eluded German Mines, Now on North Sea Duty.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Poland's resistance to Germany is continuing today on the high seas though her army has been forced to surrender to the overwhelming land forces of Germany.

Three destroyers which escaped from the Baltic through the heavily-mined Skagerak Channel north of Denmark are now on active duty with the British anti-submarine patrol in the English Channel and North sea, the admiralty revealed.

One of the five submarines of the Polish fleet is also still at large and operating somewhere in the Baltic. This is the submarine which escaped from Tallin harbor after being interned by the Estonian authorities and was the subject of a strong protest to them by the Soviet government.

The destroyers taking their share in the war afloat are the Lighting, Thunderbolt and Squall, their names having been translated from Polish in order to make them sound pronounceable by British sailors.

Crews Total 500 Men.

Trim, efficient fighting craft, they are a valuable addition to the British navy. Their crews number 500 officers and men.

When the vessels were overhauled upon reaching here, certain alterations were proposed. One was the removal of a certain gun from each ship to ease the motion in a heavy seaway.

As they were built to operate in the more calm waters of the Baltic, the destroyers were to some extent not properly trimmed for the rough weather in the Channel.

The constructors went to work on the job but when they expressed their intention to start work to unship the guns, the captains and their crews were adamant. Nothing would induce them, even for their own comfort, to surrender any weapon which they could use to fight for their country. Throw anything else overboard, they pleaded, rather than guns.

Assigned to each ship, are a few British oficers and men for signal and liaison purposes. But the command on board remains in the hands of the Polish captain.

'Beret Bagging' ... Makes Official Debut In London

LONDON—(INS)—"Beret bagging' is the latest sport of London's Bright Young Things.

Since the outbreak of war many French sailors have been seen on the streets of the capital wearing their berets with the smart red pom-pons.

Girls are finding that the hats are irresistable and consequently, during the black-out period, it is dangerous for a French sailor to move out as his hat will most certainly disappear.

The sailors are waylaid by girls who take the berets and disappear.

British soldiers and sailors also find that they are losing their hats.

One girl said she had twenty-three soldiers and sailors hats. She described the taking of the hats as a "habit."

Every time a new regiment came to town, she said, she managed to get a cap, complete with regimental badge.

Claims Perfect Archery Score, Defies Bowmen

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Archery, enjoyed by half a million people in this country, is the only sport in which a perfect score has never been registered, according to Walter Goodman, sportsman of Upper Darby, Pa. "The targets are placed at 60, 50 and 40-yard distances and each archer shoots 30 arrows at every bull's eye," Goodman explained.

"The highest possible score obtainable is 810 or 90 perfect shots in the gold or inside of a regulation 48-inch diameter target. There have been some high averages, but none approaching the 810 total."

Goodman added that archery demands the co-ordination of eye, nerves and muscles. It takes years of steady practice to reach the near perfect stages, he contended. This testimony was borne out by J. C. Ernst, former president of the Philadelphia Archery Association, who said that he killed a deer at 30 paces with a steel-headed arrow only after years of practice.

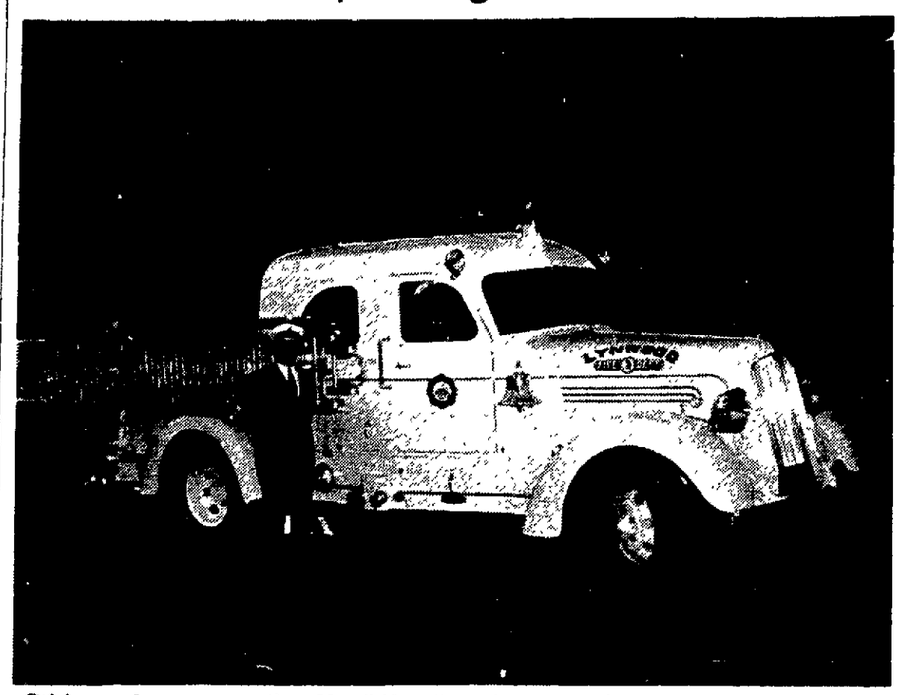
Ex-Mansfielder Driving Fire Truck to Coast



Driving nearly across a continent in a fire truck is not recommended for the average tourist but that is what these men are doing. They are Fire Commissioners C. E. Snyder, formerly of Mansfield and G. E. Christensen, of Lynwood, Cal., who visited here yesterday. They are driving the new, $10,000 Seagrave pumper from Columbus, where it was manufactured to the California city which purchased it. Snyder, who lived in Mansfield until the death of his parents 32 years ago, said they were driving the truck home to save transportation costs and to publicize their town. He was a boyhood friend of Council Clerk William Beer and Councilman George Berg. The truck was painted white to make it more easily seen at night and to distinguish it from the growing number of commercial vehicles which are painted red. The men expect to reach Lynwood in 10 days. The picture which was taken at the City building yesterday, shows Snyder standing outside the truck.

Byrd's Snow Cruiser Loaded, Ship Starts

The oft delayed Byrd ant-Arctic expedition got under way at 6:15 a. m. today when the North Star, first of the two expedition vessels, swung away from the army base on the first lap of her 12,000 mile journey. Sailing of the supply ship was delayed until this morning by the seven-hour task of lashing the 27-ton snow cruiser to the deck and checking the ship's compass. The above photo was taken while the snow cruiser was being loaded.

BYRD'S EXPEDITION OFF FOR ANTARCTIC WITHOUT FANFARE

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON — Without the slightest fanfare, the first half of Uncle Sam's first Antarctic expedition in 100 years sailed away from Boston today on the first leg of the long journey to the frozen southland.

Just before dawn the motorship North Star — loaded down with everything from food to phonograph records, from sled dogs to a 27-ton snow cruiser—cast off her lines at the army base and slid quietly down the harbor en route to Philadelphia to pick up some airplanes.

After the Philadelphia stop she will head for Panama, then for New Zealand, and finally for the expedition's west base in the Antarctic.

Next week, the second ship in the expedition, the Barkentine Bear, will follow the North Star on the 12,000-mile journey. They expect to keep a rendezvous about New Year day before establishing the bases at which the explorers hope to live for 13 months.

By thus occupying the frozen lands of the south polar region, they hope to strengthen previous U. S. claims on the territory.

"The idea would be to continue settlement on the ice for some years, possibly five or six," Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the expedition's leader, said, explaining that it was hoped to make the settlement of a semi-permanent nature, depending upon the wishes of congress.

"The present group would be relieved by others after 13 months, and although some of the first might remain down there, once is enough for most men."

High Politicos Say President Won't Fight for Delegates at Preferential Primaries.

The president smiled and told his questioner not to be so subtle.

Senator Van Nuys (D., Ind.) told reporters today that he thought Mr. Roosevelt should state immediately whether he intended to run again.

"The next election is going to be crucial," Van Nuys said, "and the party and public are entitled to this information so that they can weigh the several candidates and pick the best man in the event President Roosevelt declares he will not run."

It was learned on good authority that a fellow Indianan of Van Nuys—Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator—would try to win Democratic convention delegates in many of the 12 states which use the primary system.

The only states omitted, it was said reliably, would be ones where a bitter contest with a favorite son might result or where other unfavorable circumstances prevailed.

LEGACY OF LOVE + + + + + +

By KATHRN BEMIS

(Copyright, 1939)

CHAPTER XXVI

She was indignant, disconcerted, determined to hate him, which fitted poorly now with the Rudy Vallee crooning of roses, and violets, and dreams. She was fully convinced that Tom Cleveland had only been making sport of her all along. She had been a simple-minded little goose ever to trust him. As for thinking she loved him—that was the biggest calamity that had ever befallen her!

"Don't look so stormy, dear," he told her, gently drawing her closer into his arms. "I'll confess. I wrote you that note—I wanted you to keep out of the mess."

She stopped dancing, her blue eyes sweeping up at him daggersharp.

"You—you did that?" she blazed. "I think it was the meanest, most contemptible . . ."

He tucked her arm through his, began leading her toward the table where Eva and Harry sat.

"I mean to fight the thing out alone—without help from any one," he told her gravely.

"Fight it out—alone?"

Her voice was filled with fear—with a tenseness exposing her inner suffering. She realized now that whatever he had been, whatever he had ever done, she still loved him, and must somehow save him.

* * *

By his own words, he had nearly convicted himself. The vision of that shooting on the beach, that tall figure running away, came back to her consciousness like the sharp cruel prick of a burr. She was dizzy with misery, with the horrible certainty he had just now revived.

The worst of it was he would probably insist upon clowning through it. But she was firmly convinced that this covered something vitally important. She felt so ineffectual now, so utterly at odds with her gay surroundings. Even the fervent prayer in her heart did not seem big and strong enough to soar above her awful dread and sickness of soul.

* * *

The remainder of that night, the airplane ride back to the desert and the Palm Springs hotel, what she and Eva, Harry and Tom talked about, was ever afterward a blur in Rita's memory. Only one thing stood out. That was Tom Cleveland's dogged friendliness to Harry Handy. It was even a little too much for Eva, who had come along at Tom's insistence, expecting to be entertained by him at least part of the time.

But exert her wiles as she would, Eva could do nothing to pry the two men apart, specially now when they both seemed befuddled by taproom refreshment. Tom, as Rita was aware, was only pretending exaggerated hilarity; but Harry was talkative, far more boring to Rita than he had been when sober. So she dozed off in her seat as the plane set its nose into the sky and rode smoothly to the heights, bringing her nearer every instant to her comfortable bed.

She thought with distaste of having to meet Roger. By rights, he had long since settled himself in the hotel and should now be asleep. She wouldn't have to see him immediately, thank goodness.

At last, very early in the morning, she weaved through the hotel lobby, wretchedly weary in mind and body, and hastily left her three ill-assorted companions. To their plans for a noon dip in the pool, followed by a picnic in one of the canons, she dully nodded assent, caring about nothing now but sleep, and knowing she could find a convenient excuse later to escape all this.

She was breakfasting in bed hours later when Selia swiftly entered the room.

"Darling—why didn't you bring Roger back with you?" Selia asked. She sounded greatly disturbed.

* * *

Rita put down the piece of toast she was about to eat, looking her astonishment. "Isn't he here?" she gasped out. "I thought he'd arrive before I did."

"He certainly isn't in the hotel. I just called the desk—and the clerk said he isn't registered. He wouldn't go any other place—he always stays here. What did he tell you—what . . ."

"I didn't see him," explained the puzzled Rita. "I went to his office, and Mr. Lee told me Roger had gone—for the week-end. I supposed of course he was on his way here."

"Supposed? Why didn't you make certain?" This was the first time that Selia had ever been so cross with Rita, but Rita could see that the woman was, for some reason, nearly beside herself with anxiety.

"I didn't think it necessary to—pry into Roger's actions. I thought Mr. Lee would tell me anything he thought I should know," Rita said a trifle caustically.

"There's no way of finding out where he is—what he's up to," wailed Selia, expressing her fears aloud.

Rita attempted to calm her. "We can't do anything about it now, Selia. By tomorrow. . . ."

"By tomorrow anything can happen. You act as though you don't care what. . . ."

"I'm certainly not going to get as wrought up over him as you are, Selia. If he doesn't want to be here, it won't help to fret over him. Perhaps business. . . ."

"I hope it's not bad news," said Selia curiously.

"Oh, no—not too bad," said Rita truthfully. Anything that would allow to her to slide out from under her promise to marry Roger Brewster! But she dared not tell his overwrought mother for the present; she hoped the matter would automatically adjust itself in the end.

So, trying to appear calm, Rita set aside her breakfast tray, stuck her small pink feet into the rose satin mules beside her bed, saying, "I'll hurry and dress. I can be back Monday—attend to your mail then."

"I'll go with you—Preston can drive us. We can go to Madame Brunet's Hollywood shop tomorrow morning. She's having her summer opening—modeling wedding gowns. It's high time we selected something exquisite for you, my dear."

Excuses died on Rita's dry lips. If Shelia were determined to accompany her to town, nothing could stop her. But Rita made a quick attempt to ward off the blow this woman must sooner or later meet. She reminded her, "Weren't you and mother planning something for today? She'll be so disappointed."

"Oh, the countess' I'd forgotten. I'll hunt her up right now—explain. A bridge game can go on any time."

* * *

She hurried away, and Rita knew that Selia now was all mother. She would go to the ends of the earth, if necessary, to discover what trouble Roger was in this time, because intuition told her something was wrong.

The ride to town was an endurance test so far as Rita was concerned. She tried to be casually affable to Selia while her mind searched for the best plan of action. She sat clutching her handbag, which contained the letter

"Bosh! You know better! It's probably your indifference that's sent the poor boy into goodness knows what. He needs a lot of petting—he needs. . . ."

* * *

A knock sounded on the door.

Selia flung the door open, fairly snatched the letter a bellboy was holding out. She hurriedly read the inscription on the envelope, closed the door, and handed the letter to Rita.

"It's a special for you, dear. But it doesn't look like Roger's writing."

Selia was all contrition now, regretting her recent outburst. Surely, this was a message either from or concerning Roger, and everything was going to be all right.

Rita's startled eyes hastily scanned the few sentences on the sheet of paper she held in her hand. Her face paled, and she was swept with deeper pity for Selia than for herself. Roger Brewster had either willingly become entangled with the woman who had written this note, or was the victim of circumstances.

Rita did some quick thinking, came to a speedy conclusion. It would be kinder to pretend that the message did not concern Selia's beloved boy until she could get at the absolute truth.

"It's—it's a matter of business. I'll have to go back to town at once—if you don't mind, Selia."

"But today's Sunday—you can't do business today!"

Rita's lips drew into a tight line. She said unsteadily, "This sort of business—can be attended to any day."

written by Roger's secretary—the girl who claimed to be in love with him and to be assured of his love in return. She had also explained that Roger was with her this week-end at the home of her uncle in Los Angeles, and that nothing could ever part Roger and her.

She wanted, she wrote, to be fair to Rita, so she was giving her the facts. The letter was not aimed to antagonize, Rita thought, but rather was a charitable gesture toward a somewhat complicated situation. It looked as if she only wanted Rita to release Roger, have everything settled openly and aboveboard. Lela Trout must be rather nice, at that.

It was late afternoon when the Brewster limousine slid into the city limits and on up to a hotel. Selia settled Rita luxuriously in a suite and herself in an adjoining one equally imposing. But the strain on their nerves made them wakeful throughout the night, and both looked haggard and avoided speaking of Roger when they met at breakfast in Selia's spacious sitting-room.

"Vendol Has Made Me Feel Like New," Says Ohio Man

Declares constipation caused gassy stomach, upset nerves, sick headaches and other troubles. Advises everyone to try this great medicine.

MR. C. E. PILCHER

Vendol grows more popular in this city and nearby vicinity as time goes by and every day people come to tell what wonderful relief it has given them. Seems most everyone here will soon know about Vendol and be giving it a trial.

Mr. C. E. Pilcher, of 1805 Beatrice St., Springfield, Ohio, describes relief since trying Vendol as follows, "I was so badly constipated that it made me feel that everything in the world was wrong with me. It made me so nervous I seldom got a good night's rest, and this getting up so often made me feel exhausted and life became a drag, and it also kept my stomach so upset that I was miserable from gas, sourness, acid risings, and a choking feeling in my throat. Seemed everything I ate lay heavy in my stomach.

"This constipated condition often made me have bilious, dizzy spells, my breath was unpleasant, tongue coated and my skin looked dull and sallow. I was truly miserable when I began taking Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets a few weeks ago.

"I first got the most wonderful relief from constipation, then my stomach seemed to become calm and all signs of excess acidity passed off and then I was relieved of gas, sourness, acid risings, and cramps. I could eat hearty meals with no after-feeling of heaviness or lump in my throat.

"This gratifying relief from constipation brought relief from headaches, dizziness, bilious feeling and quieted my nerves so well that my sleep became full and restful with no getting up during the night. Vendol proved a real blessing to me so I'm happy to tell everyone suffering like I did about it."

Give Vendol a chance to help you too. It is sold by most all leading druggists, and the Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Main and Fourth Sts., to explain all about it. So, come see him today if possible.
